TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail reports the Royal Commission report into the financial affairs of Belleville, Ont., finds the city council guilty of gross negligence. The inquiry began when a deficit of $225,000 was discovered. Half of it was attributed to operation of the world champion Belleville hockey team.

'Speak Up On Ships'

Premier Bennett yesterday called on the people of British Columbia to make "a real issue" of the federal government's failure to issue ship contracts to western shipyards.

He was referring to the two freighter contracts issued to eastern Canadian shipyards this week because it was claimed west coast tenders were $1,000,000 above the lowest eastern tender.

UP TO PEOPLE

"It is up to the people of British Columbia to speak up right now," he said.

He had praise for Victoria Mayor Percy Scurrell's efforts to have at least one of the contracts placed on the West Coast. "I am very pleased with the attitude of Mayor Scurrell in this problem," he said.

GREAT DISMAY

The premier said he was "alarmed that the national government had turned down the shipyards of British Columbia . . . It was with great dismay I learned the national government was not letting either contract to the Pacific Coast."

MOST UNFAIR

"We think it is most unfair and unrealistic. We can't keep trained artisans here in the event of a national emergency, if these jobs are not available here . . . The federal government doesn't recognize the great trained and skilled craftsmen in our shipbuilding industry," he said.

SCALE IGNORED

He charged that the federal government doesn't take into consideration the B.C. wage scales.

"The federal government benefits from the taxes, especially income tax, and should take that into consideration," he said.

POOR DEAL

The premier charged British Columbia was getting a very poor deal from the government of Canada.

He said B.C. only gets a return of 13 per cent from income taxes collected in this province under the tax-rental scheme, whereas "some provinces get 85 per cent of the taxes collected."

SEAWAY EXAMPLE

The premier pointed to the big works programs in eastern Canada such as the St. Lawrence seaway and complained the federal government won't even build bridges for B.C.

"Since we are treated so poorly, we think the least they can do is let some of these ship contracts to the west coast," the premier maintained.

'Starved' Universities Losing Out to U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government is "starving" Canadian universities of money for pure scientific research, a ranking physicist with the University of British Columbia said Thursday.

"Canada is losing its brilliant young minds to the United States for lack of opportunities here at home," said Dr. Gordon Shrum, outspoken dean of graduate studies and head of the physics department at the university. He made the remarks in an interview.

Dr. Shrum asked for more space for scientific research equipment, more outstanding young research men, and more money for fellowships to support the scientists' work.

"Science is part of our civilization," the physicist said. "We want to provide our own know-how and not continue forever to pay tribute in the form of royalties to other nations — nations which make better use of their brightest young people."

End result of this "starvation of universities" will be reduction of the number of good scientists being turned out by the universities to a trickle, Dr. Shrum said.

K's Appeal Backed Up

LONDON (AP) — Moscow Radio said last night the Soviet Union has launched a new world-wide appeal in support of Premier Khrushchev's total-disarmament plan. The appeal was aimed at parliaments of all countries in all parts of the world.

Khrushchev has called for abolition of all armies, navies and air forces, military bases and war staffs over a period of four years.

GALIANO—Three men were thrown into the icy waters of Active Pass about 8 p.m. last night when their 32-foot cruiser hit a tow rope behind a tug.

George Heinecke, chairman of School District 64 (Salt Spring) board of trustees, and Chalmers N. Peterson, secretary of the board, were going to Mayne Island to attend a school board meeting, aboard the Hazel Idle Hours, operated by Harry Extell.

THROWN OVERBOARD

The cruiser hit a tow rope behind the Vancouver-based tug Grant Lindsay and threw the men into the pass.

The boat went adrift and is believed to have sunk.

CLIMBED UP

The three men trod water until the barge being towed by the tug came up to them and then they climbed aboard.

They hailed the tug which stopped and took them aboard.

The tug was unable to turn around to take them back to Galiano and continued on its way to Vancouver.

They arrived there late last night.

Scandals 'Crisis In Morals'

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI)—Dr. Norman Vincent Peale yesterday called the television quiz scandals "a crisis in national morals." The clergyman-author, "somewhat shocked by the dishonest aspects of TV quiz programs," asked whether "this country had become a nation of 'moral illiterates'."

'Kickbacks' Disclosed

Jail TV Cheats NBC Suggests

WASHINGTON (AP)—Robert E. Kintner, admitting his own National Broadcasting Company had been a victim of quiz show fakery, suggested Thursday that Congress pass a law to jail TV program cheaters.

Kintner, NBC president, told a Congressional subcommittee his network is taking every step it can to prevent any repetition of the quiz show connivance which shocked millions of television viewers.

Later, Kintner disclosed that two employees of the current TV quiz show, Treasure Hunt, have been fired for taking "kickbacks" from contestants they helped get on the program.

The network chief did not identify the employees, but Jan Murray of Jantone Enterprises, Inc., owner of the show, and its producer, Phil Levens, identified them as Barney Martin and Artie Roberts. They worked as "warm-up" men, who were supposed to loosen up the audience before Treasure Hunt went on the air.

Subcommittee chairman Oren Harris said later that Kintner's proposal "deserves consideration by the committee."

Kintner also announced that NBC planned to create a special investigating unit to police its programs for the purpose of "detecting, rooting out and preventing deception."

Kintner asked Congress and the public not to judge the broadcasting industry by disclosures that many big-money quiz contests had been rigged.

After 3½ hours at the witness table, Kintner was excused by Harris with this advice: "If the television industry doesn't police itself, it faces the danger of rigid controls by the government."

Charlie My Boy

NEW YORK (AP)—A crowd of cheering, chanting students turned out on the Columbia University campus Thursday night demanding that Charles Van Doren be rehired as a teacher.

About 400 students milled about for two hours chanting "We want Charlie back . . . we want Charlie back."

High in one of the dormitories a trombonist played over and over the tune, Charlie, My Boy.

Nearly 1,000 students signed a petition asking his reinstatement.

Council Backs Wyatt Report

By R. O. MARRION

Victoria city will seek relief from what City Manager C. C. Wyatt described yesterday as "lopsided, inequitable, unjustifiable" taxation for school costs.

If there is no relief, he said, Victoria ratepayers will have paid at least $8,530,933 more than their just share of Greater Victoria school costs in the 25 years ending in 1970.

He presented to city council a comprehensive report recommending that the provincial government be asked to remedy the situation, and council unanimously adopted the recommendation. It appointed its finance committee and Mr. Wyatt to take the case to the government.

(See also Page 19)

Two aldermen suggested that, failing success in this move, Victoria should seek to pull out of the Greater Victoria school district.

"I take the stand that if we can't get a better deal, we should force ourselves out of School District 61 and have a better deal on our own," said Ald. M. H. Mooney. Ald. Elmer McEwen said much the same thing.

Mr. Wyatt's report, the result of months of work, showed that Victoria's per-pupil school costs are substantially higher than its municipal neighbors'.

C. C. WYATT
... unjustifiable

'Rich' Pay for 'Poor'

The district ratepayers' portion of school costs is shared among municipalities in the district in proportion to the assessed value of property within their boundaries, regardless of the number of children going to school from each. In this way the "richer" municipalities pay more than the "poorer," although their school tax rates are roughly the same.

But Mr. Wyatt disagreed with this concept. "To suggest that one municipality is a 'have' (as opposed to 'have-not') solely because of its taxable assessment is absurd," he maintained.

Because Victoria ratepayers have to pay higher taxes than their neighbors for central services in the "core" of Greater Victoria, he held, Victoria should be categorized as a "have-not" and its taxpayers "should not be placed in the position of having to subsidize the local school costs."

Instead, he said, Victoria's school costs should be what they would have been if Victoria had not been made part of the Greater Victoria school district, but had stayed on its own. Victoria, he maintained, should have to pay no more than the costs of sending its own children to school.

Here Are Findings

Here, in much-condensed form, are his findings:

From 1946 — when the Greater Victoria district was created — to 1959, the city has paid $2,293,441 more than it would have if the amount had been determined by multiplying the average per-pupil cost by the number of Victoria students.

In addition, in that period, school construction costs in Victoria have been $2,305,229, but the city's share of construction costs in the whole district has been $3,988,226, an "excess" of $1,682,229.

Therefore, "it would appear that the Victoria taxpayers have, and will continue to contribute materially to the school construction costs outside of the city's boundaries unless the formula is modified."

From 1960 to 1970, using Capital Region Planning Board projections of school enrolment, Victoria pupils will account for only 13.3 per cent of an increase of 6,750.

On this basis, Victoria taxpayers will pay $4,011,620 more toward operating costs than they would if they were paying only for their own children. By the same token, Victoria's share of construction costs will be $552,875 greater than it would be if Victoria were to pay only for new classrooms needed for Victoria children.

No Really High Rates

The Cameron report of 1945 which resulted in formation of larger school districts supposed that "no really high rates will remain, and it will make little financial difference to a district whether or not it becomes part of a larger unit."

But "neither Dr. Cameron nor the government of the day, in view of the written prediction, 'it will make little financial difference,' conceived that the city of Victoria would be so adversely financially affected."

No authority, Mr. Wyatt said, "can be construed as logical and justifiable which requires the taxpayers of one municipality to pay, either directly or indirectly, materially higher per-pupil school costs than its neighboring municipalities. This is especially true when there are instances of school children from two or more municipalities attending the same school. And yet that is the circumstance that has prevailed for the past 13 years and is becoming progressively more pronounced."

He directed council's attention to a provision of the Public School Act permitting the cabinet to give special aid to a school district "upon taking into consideration the position and circumstances of the district."

Council's first reaction was to congratulate Mr. Wyatt on his "wonderful" and "very excellent" report and "terrific amount of work."

Ald. Austin Curtis, a former school board chairman, pointed to what he called another "unseen cost" to the city — 400 more children attending schools in the city from beyond the city borders than city children attending schools in the other municipalities.

He said he thought council had to forget the past 13 years but get to work to save city taxpayers from the extra burden in future.

Ald. Elmer McEwen recalled he had said in the spring that

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

WOMEN know that they are better than men—smarter, stronger and saner.

Yet there is always some busybody scientist wasting his time proving the obvious.

Not long ago that notorious traitor to his sex, Dr. Ashley Montague, used up tons of printers' ink and paper to convince the English-speaking world that Eve was an improvement on Adam.

Women pretended to be amused and even shocked by Montague's findings. But when they thought they were out of the sight of men they smiled their little secret smiles and said to one another:

"The poor man ought to tell us something we don't know."

Now a professor at the University of Manitoba has also succeeded in proving the self-evident.

Dr. John Zubek, head of the university's psychology department, has been imprisoning student volunteers one at a time in a dark, silent isolation dome and observing what happens to them. The results may be useful in planning space travel.

The men came out chewing their nails, complaining of headaches and reporting that they had been seeing things that were not there. One man lasted only three hours.

The lone woman came out looking cool and bored. "The silence was rather pleasant," reported Wilma Sansom, 29-year-old psychology student. "It was similar to being in the middle of a deep forest."

Dr. Zubek said that charts of her brain-waves showed fewer disturbances than the charts of the men. "There is plenty of documented evidence to show that the female is better able to stand stress and strain," he said.

You don't build a scientific theory on one woman's performance. Others will have to go through the same test, for the sake of proof. But everyone knows what the result is going to be: That women are smarter, stronger, etc. Also, they smell sweeter and they're a nicer shape. Who's arguing?

From the Manitoba experiments it may turn out that women will be more efficient crew members in space-ships than men.

If the all-female space ship becomes a reality, men can say goodbye to their last pretence of equal status. Already North American women induce men to do most of their housework, and they spur men on to work hard, die early and leave women their money.

Until now, however, women have been careful to bolster men's self-esteem by letting them think of themselves as the adventurers and conquerors.

But this illusion will vanish like smoke when the first rocket with an Amazon crew lands on another planet.

From that time onward, men will cease to be bosses and breadwinners. They'll become mere household pets, kept only for companionship and love—but wait a minute! What's so bad about that? Bon voyage to Venus, girls.

City Wants Better Break

Victoria had contributed "a million or a million and half too much, but I hardly believed it was really so much."

He said he believed Mr. Wyatt's formula would appear fair to the average person. But he feared the province would take the position that in not protesting before, the city had agreed with the present formula. Mr. Wyatt answered that the city had been objecting since 1952.

Ald. Arthur Dowell doubted that the city could withdraw from the district school board. But he held that the city's case should be put to the government with all possible emphasis, and fully explained to the public.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgell, who first proposed the study, was sure the government would see the unfairness of the present situation and would do something about it. Ald. Hugh Ramsay observed that the excess paid by the city in the past 13 years would have built an off-street parking facility and a new city hall.

Despite Ald. Curtis' contention that the S. J. Willis Junior High School property had been acquired solely for school purposes by the city in 1946, and therefore the city couldn't ask the Greater Victoria school board to pay for it now, Aldermen Mooney and Proudfoot maintained for a while that the city should pursue the matter.

But other aldermen, fearing this issue might overshadow the main business, thought it should be held in abeyance.

"I suggest the city manager and city solicitor get together and make a summary of all events in the S. J. Willis case," said Mayor Percy Scurrell, "with a short legal opinion in words of one syllable, and advice on what we should do."

The mayor, Ald. Curtis and Ald. Dowell are the finance committee members who will take the city's submission to the government. The aid of Victoria members of the legislature will be sought, council decided.

Right-Hand Man Turns on De Gaulle

Bidault Declares War

PARIS (UPI)—Ex-Premier Georges Bidault, who was Gen. Charles de Gaulle's right-hand man during the Second World War, yesterday declared all-out war on de Gaulle's Algerian program.

Bidault told a packed press conference his recently formed Rally for French Algeria movement would fight de Gaulle's program until Algeria has been formally and finally "integrated" with France.

Throughout the Second World War, Bidault represented de Gaulle in Nazi-occupied France as president of the National Resistance Council. He became foreign minister in de Gaulle's first post-liberation cabinet and later was twice premier.

Yesterday Bidault charged de Gaulle had "violated" France's constitution by offering the population of a French territory a chance to vote itself out of the French community.

Cool Rocket Test Pilot Rides Craft After Blast

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—An explosion rocked the X-15 on its third powered flight yesterday, but test pilot Scott Crossfield made a split-second decision to stay with the rocket ship and made a successful emergency landing.

Crossfield saved the $500,000 experimental craft, although "some damage" resulted. Crossfield was injured as the needle-nosed X-15 skidded to a halt on Rosamond Dry Lake.

The witty and debonair Bidault bitterly derided the support de Gaulle's self-determination plan received from Communists.

De Gaulle's offer, Bidault charged, was a "gamble," based on the hope that in the future plebiscite the majority of Algerians would vote to stay with France.

Electricity now is available to more than a third of Mexico's 32,350,000 citizens.

Alderman's Chair Scott's Goal Again

W. A. Scott, 61, who was disqualified four years ago as an alderman candidate, announced last night that he's going to try once more for the same civic office.

"I want (the authorities) to come forward and try to explain why Bill Scott can't run," he said.

Mr. Scott's disqualification followed his conviction for assault occasioning actual bodily harm. Charge arose from an incident involving an Oak Bay wiring inspector in 1955.

The Municipal Act states that any person who has been convicted of an indictable offence is disqualified from holding office until five years after expiration of the punishment. Mr. Scott was fined $40.

The local businessman and president of the Victoria Humanist Society says: "It's quite true I engaged in fist-cuffs, but it was only a 'minor' offence."

He said instead of the usual conviction under the Summary Conviction Act which governed his case (for common assault) he was given a criminal conviction.

Conviction for common assault, said Mr. Scott, would have left him free to run for office.

"I want to bring this to a head."

"Our attorney-general has the power to free me," he said, "and allow me to run for office."

Nehru Has Faith in Red Talks, But He'll 'Keep Powder Dry'

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Prime Minister Nehru said Thursday his peaceful approach toward settlement of the Chinese-Indian border dispute did not rule out military action.

Speaking at a press conference, Nehru defended his policies strongly and said he wished to create a spirit in the country so that people would fight even with sticks against any aggressor.

"My general approach is always to meet, to discuss, to avoid strong language—but to prepare always for strong action," Nehru said when asked whether he would meet Chinese Premier Chou En-lai.

His policy toward China was to "trust in conciliatory policies and keep your powder dry."

Store Paid For Plugs On TV Show?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional investigators in the TV scandals Thursday explored further into testimony that Max Hess, Allentown, Pa., department store owner, paid $15,000 to get an employee on the $64,000 question.

The employee, Kenneth Hoffer, mentioned the Hess store twice—plugs that Hess said were worth the money.

David Gottlieb, another former Hess employee, testified he paid Elroy Schwartz $10,000 to place Hoffer on the show. He said Schwartz worked for the Louis G. Cowan firm which produced the first of the "question" programs for Revlon Incorporated.

New York's district attorney, Frank Hogan said yesterday that possibly 100 persons lied when questioned by a grand jury investigating fix charges against TV quiz shows. He said perjury action would be considered.

Capt. Michael O'Rourke has resigned from the army on the heels of testimony by a TV quiz show producer that his appearances as a contestant were rigged. He won $108,000 on the show Tie-Tac-Dough.

A former executive of Revlon Inc. testified yesterday that the rigging of the Revlon-sponsored $64,000 television quiz shows was an act of desperation to rescue the programs from poor viewer ratings.

At the same time, George Abrams indicated that Martin Revson, former executive vice-president of Revlon, may not have been aware that the destiny of contestants was decided in off-stage meetings between producers and the sponsors.

In Vancouver, B.C., retired lawyer Edward Lucas, 75, who won $3,800 on the $64,000 challenge television show in New York said he had no indication the program was rigged.

Meanwhile, NBC and CBS report mail and telegram sentiment in favor of continuance of television quiz shows.

Not Good Enough

MORE than disappointment is involved in the loss of two freighter contracts to eastern shipyards, despite the strenuous efforts of the mayor and local business and labor representatives to secure this work. The loss of the payroll which would follow if men have to be laid off would be felt all through the community. Shipbuilding is one of Victoria's main industries.

It is hard to argue against dollars and cents and if this were all Victoria would have to bite its lips and remain silent. The contracts have gone elsewhere because the ships can be built cheaper in the east. This is an instance where B.C. pays for its higher standards of living, reflected in the wage and freight scales which make it impossible for local yards to bid on the same terms as their eastern competitors. No one here wants these standards reduced, although it is a fact that men out of employment have no standard of living.

There are other considerations, however, when shipbuilding awards are made by the government. In the present instance these two freighters are being built as a gift to the West Indies. The gesture will therefore be made at double cost to shipyard workers sharing as donors through their taxes and deprived of work in the making of the gift. There is also the matter of the efficiency of the local yards.

A Department of Transport spokesman has cast a gratuitous slur on their operations, which comes ill from an official concerned with bestowing government contracts. He does not seem to know what he is talking about, either. A rejection of a local bid might be defended, but not an aspersion which is denied by the facts. The two local yards claim, and can produce figures to prove it, that their man-hour work records are the best in the country. The reputation of Victoria yards is first-rate, and the war offered innumerable examples of the capacity of local yards to match any other Canadian yard in shipbuilding skills. Is this factor to be ignored?

There is another thing. In Esquimalt is the biggest drydock in the whole country; the biggest in fact on the Pacific coast. It brings valuable repair and maintenance work to this area and therefore, through supplies and taxation to Canada as a whole. It can be said that the local yards would not get this work if it did not happen that so large a drydock was located here, but it can be said equally that drydock revenues would suffer greatly if there were no shipyards in attendance. This drydock also, belongs to the department which has rejected the local bids.

What would the government like the Victoria yards to do? Close down and thus abolish the shipbuilding industry in this area? One look at the map should convince federal officials that if the transport department is not interested the defence department certainly has ample reason to be concerned. The shipbuilding industry here is vital to Canada and there is a direct responsibility on Ottawa to see that it does not languish.

One other peculiar aspect of the present situation is this. The same pontifical transport official is reported to have said that his department in future will award contracts to this coast only for ships to be designed specially for west coast waters. This means that in advance of anything else—without reference to cost, efficiency, employment or other factor—the transport department has come to a blanket decision about the ships it will build. And that in the main it means to leave the west coast out in the cold.

Something much more satisfactory will have to result for the future of the shipbuilding industry of Victoria. It seems time for the members for the Victoria and Esquimalt constituencies to do battle once again on behalf of the local yards and the skills of workmen of fine mettle.

Jail for Suspended Driver

MOTORISTS who continue to drive after being officially disqualified should take note of what happened to one of their number this week. In the city police court a motorist convicted of driving while his licence was suspended was sentenced to 30 days' imprisonment in Oakalla.

This man had a previous conviction for the same offence, but even if he had been a first offender on that charge the punishment would not have been too severe. The suspension of a driving licence is in itself a warning and any motorist who fails to heed it does not deserve another chance. In some parts of the country the courts appear to regard driving after suspension of licence as a minor misdemeanor. Fortunately for the safety of the public that is not so in Victoria; but even here the practice generally is to punish a first conviction for driving while disqualified with a fine, usually a fairly heavy one.

When the ingredients of this particular offence are examined it should be seen that it is the one above all others for which there can be no excuse. The accused in the circumstances resulting in the lifting of his licence receives all the warning to which he is reasonably entitled. If he disobeys an order not to drive he can plead neither ignorance nor inadvertence, because it is not the kind of offence which can be committed unconsciously or accidentally.

Let the Electors Decide

ONCE a year the municipal electors of Greater Victoria go to the polls to express their wishes regarding civic administration in all its branches. Taking advantage of this—the largest and most thoroughly representative of public turn-outs which can be achieved—three of the four municipalities now appear certain to put referendums next month on the fluoridation issue. So far, Esquimalt alone has indicated that it will not do so. The result, regardless of how the vote went in the three participating centres, would be blanked out, because Esquimalt's is the first tap on the common water system.

In effect then, action by Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich to poll their electors on fluoridation—and that is merely to ask their views—can only be stymied by Esquimalt's refusal to act. Another year of indecision will follow on an issue which we strongly suspect the electors are ready to settle now. Of what is Esquimalt afraid? Would not a direct opinion given by Esquimalt voters be in fact the strongest and most useful guide to that council it could possibly have? We think that it would, and that the stand-out is unjustified on any terms. Let the electors decide.

Interpreting the News

Austerity for Poland

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

THE Polish Communist party has decided that Poles have been living too high.

While Polish housewives have been queuing up for pork at the meat shops, the state farms and individual peasants have been cutting back on hog production.

The problem is two-fold. Polish agriculture has not kept pace with the population growth, which is one of the fastest in Europe. Meanwhile, the Polish worker's real wages have jumped more than 20 per cent, giving him some jangling money for his pocket and the where-withal for a fancier diet.

The Communist leadership's answer for this was to increase the price of meat 25 per cent, at the same time sending party workers out through the rank and file to explain this unpalatable bit of austerity.

Poland has been living beyond its means since 1956, but the party and the government knows it is treading on treacherous ground in attempts to get the individual Pole to retrench.

Polish workers expressed themselves forcefully in the "bread and freedom" riots at Poznan in 1956, and won substantial concessions from the government which admitted it had been guilty of poor planning.

The Communist party central committee again has found evidence of bad management in industry, bad planning in agriculture and rising absenteeism among the workers. The answer to all this, the committee says, is discipline and this it now will attempt to impose.

The attack is being carried out through various channels.

Newspapers have been marshalled into line to inveigle against the "incorrect tendency to substitute white bread for dark and meat and sausage for milk and cheese."

Thinking Aloud

Positive Neutralism

By TOM TAYLOR

ONE thing the TW quiz revelations across the line have proved is that the contestants now in dubious standing were most excellent actors.

The agonies of thought and recollection that tugged at the emotions of the deceived television watchers were certainly well simulated. Some of them seemed so realistic they deserve a prize, although not so monstrous a prize as in fact was their reward. If they were coached in advance how to give the correct answers, or vice versa, obviously they were equally well taught how to adopt the correct histrionic postures. Doubtless this training will now qualify them for the stage or screen, and having attained the requisite notoriety possibly that's where some of them will end up; in Hollywood.

For want of a nail a shoe was lost and so on to various other losses. Something of the same kind of circle in reverse is being fashioned with the moon and her visiting satellites. Britain has the biggest radio-telescope for tracking luniks and seeing they don't get lost, a 240-foot reflector. The U.S. is building one with a mirror 600 feet across, and Russia aims to top them all with a cross-shaped device with 750-foot arms. No lunik in future is going to slip out of iron curtain gaze, you see. It seems a bit like the cart and the horse, however; sending up satellites before one has the means to keep an eye on them all the way. Nevertheless the procedure so far has paid its way, for Russia.

The lieutenant-governor says that a breakfast of mere toast, orange and coffee is a poor recipe for success in life. Now I know what is ailing me. Except that I substitute tea for coffee I also belong to the scanty morning diet club. In my own defence I will submit that I am not irritable by 11 a.m., though, but otherwise I am deficient. Joking aside I am inclined to agree with His Honor nevertheless. A good breakfast is a good foundation for a day's work, any kind of work. So I have always been told even if I have neglected to follow this advice. Perhaps it is not too late for me to change my ways.

The battle of the bulge, military and civilian, is beginning to pale compared to the battle of the generals in print. Montgomery now says that Eisenhower started the postwar re-arrangements, being first to have his memoirs published. Ike was not noticeably acid-penned however; mild compared to Alanbrooke's commentaries on his wartime associates. A new entrant into the fray is Carl Spaatz, the former U.S. bomber chief, who wonders if some of these war-time diaries haven't been amended in the postwar years. I have suspected this of military memoirs for a long time myself; otherwise it seems their authors took unconscionable time out during battles and other allegedly crucial periods to put their private thoughts and opinion on record—when, on the evidence of their own writings, they should have been otherwise engaged.

The civil defence problem is even more mixed up than before, with some authorities advising a flight from the home front, others a retreat to the basement shelter, and still others a combination of both. Confusion is compounded also by the resignation of the federal defence co-ordinator in protest against the government's CD policies, his call for a royal commission of inquiry—and then his departure for another country! Unless he has taken his own shelter with him he must believe Canada is a good place not to be in when bombs are falling; although I doubt he will find CD sorted out any better in Britain than here. They age at sixes and sevens on the subject over there too.

Positive Neutralism

No Co-Existence with Communists

By GUY WINT, from London

NEUTRALISM, or positive neutralism as it is more correctly called, is the answer of countries which desire to hold aloof from conflicts of the rival power block. In a world divided by ideological conflict, it appeared to offer a way out for countries who wish to be left alone to work out their destinies and at the same time to discharge their obligations as world citizens. It is an attitude that has gained increasing understanding and respect in the free world.

Positive neutralism differs radically from old-fashioned neutrality. Old-fashioned neutrality is the attempt to avoid war by contracting out of the problems of the time. A country which is neutralist in this sense hides its head in the sands and says that in no circumstances will it fight for principles. Positive neutralism is of a very different order.

One of the main tenets of positive neutralism is that military alliances tend to breed war rather than prevent them. They provoke counter-blocs; that at least is the gist of the argument. A concomitant which its supporters say is equally important is that a country which refuses to enter military alliances must actively endeavor by its good offices to remove causes of international tension.

Values Eroded

(From The Wall Street Journal)

THROUGHOUT American industry there is a discernable employee apathy. Throughout the American economy there is featherbedding—railroad firemen paid to tend non-existent fires, musicians paid for not playing, farmers paid for not farming, pilots paid for not flying, everywhere men paid for watching machines, that do not need watching.

At this point it might appropriately be asked: If all this is so, how come the productivity of labor is said to be constantly increasing? The plain answer is that the rising productivity of labor is largely a misnomer. Capital investment in ever more productive machinery is the answer.

It is impossible not to wonder about the attitude of people who accept pay for no work; year in and year out, or who do the least possible—a form of inactivity that might be called unofficial featherbedding. It is impossible not to wonder what has happened to their self-respect.

Here again there is an answer. Union leaders not only sanction and encourage all forms of featherbedding; they defend the practices with a circuitous reasoning that would stun a Sophist. The union example is followed elsewhere.

Conspiring with and reinforcing this attitude is the government philosophy—fashionable in our time. This would remove from the individual many of the cares of dealing with life, and most particularly remove his sense of responsibility; in a word, spare him the bother of being a human being with inherent dignity and self-respect. It is not so surprising if many people are willing to do little when government presumes to do all.

So much for causes. The effects are also evident with increasingly painful clarity. Frequently shoddy workmanship. Crippling strikes for whimsical reasons. Disdain for the contract. The enormous economic toll of featherbedding which is rapidly turning this into a high-cost economy, as reflected in the inability of U.S. products to compete as once they did in world markets. Perhaps most important of all, the erosion of values once held high.

We are not calling for some nebulous national moral resurgence, though the problem is a moral one. We are saying that if there is softness in America today it is not primarily inferior education or "inadequate" public spending but this union and statist-sponsored philosophy of indolence. There are other countries, some friendly and some otherwise, where that philosophy does not obtain.

We are saying that a little moral indignation ought to be directed at the salesmen of sloth that weaken our society.

It is ironic and saddening that the same Chou-en-Lai is now flaunting the policy so cynically and so consistently. If positive neutralism is to be a possible and attractive policy, a reciprocity by other countries is required. Countries which adapt their foreign policies according to the principles of positive neutralism must have their neutralism respected by the Great Powers. By its aggressiveness against its southern neighbors, China, on the contrary, has shown its disrespect.

Respect must not be intermittent—given when it suits the interest of the Great Powers, flouted when it does not. Respect must be permanent, genuine, dependable.

Positive neutralism demands that certain rules of international behavior be observed. China, carried away by what Nehru recently called "pride and arrogance of might," has broken them. The consequences may be heavy.

China and Nehru in 1954 enumerated the famous five principles of non-interference and non-intervention. Evidently China gives them up at once if they stand in the way of asserting her traditional imperialist claims to domination.

Not only China but Russia has broken the rules. In the Middle East the mask is being dropped. Today Russia wants allies and satellites there, no longer neutrals. Arab nationalism, once so much favored by Moscow, is now regarded as an obstacle to Russia's domination of the Middle East.

The root fact is that the Communist powers gave their blessing to neutralism because at the time they did so it seemed neutralism could be used against the West. Today the situation has changed. Russia had second thoughts when some of its own satellites wanted to switch from the Warsaw Pact and become neutrals. It would not tolerate that. One result was its victimization of Hungary.

All the main champions of neutralism—Nasser, Tito and now Nehru—have one by one become targets of Communist censure, Russian or Chinese or sometimes both. Unhappily it seems Communism has not mellowed. Communist countries have no more respect than in the past for the rights and dignity of countries and peoples which they think are not as strong as they are.

It seems that positive neutralism can no more co-exist peacefully with Communism than can nationalism, independence and freedom.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

A GREAT many of us can't make up our minds whether we are in favor of capital punishment or against it. Among those who have their minds made up on one side or the other are a good many whose decision is on an emotional level. On the one hand are those who are literally sickened at the thought of the inexorable cruelty of the processes of execution, and who in this enlightened age see no justice in a life for a life. On the other hand are those whose family or friends have been victimized by murderers, or who, by reason of temperament or by a chastening experience of life itself, are inclined to be a little hard in their adherence to the Biblical injunction of an eye for an eye.

The original intention of the death penalty in very ancient and prehistoric times was, as far as anthropologists can find out, not revenge; nor was it to serve as an object lesson to others. Primitive man understood perfectly well, long before any scholars came on the scene, that like begets like. And offenders were killed so that they could no longer breed or reproduce. When a bad actor grew up in a tribe, he was got rid of, in accordance with elementary laws, and for far less offence than murder. There was no morality involved. Just security and sound livestock practice.

But ever since the tribesmen arrived at the theological conclusion that they were not livestock, the question of capital punishment has become increasingly involved.

True love's the gift which God has given
To man alone beneath the heaven:
It is not fantasy's hot fire,
Whose wishes, soon as granted, fly;
It liveth not in fierce desire,
With dead desire it doth not die;
It is the secret sympathy,
The silver link, the silken tie,
Which heart to heart, and mind to mind,
In body and in soul can bind.

—SIR WALTER SCOTT

Unfair Burden

We read and hear very little in proportion to teenage population of their good behavior or their efforts to emerge from the difficult teen years into first-class citizens. The time has now arrived to call a halt and relieve the unfair burden of guilt placed upon the shoulders of our young. Our public officials who have access quite frequently to sounding off publicly would do today's youth a better service whenever possible if they used their position to help the young—less detraction and more praise where due, thereby enlisting their help and co-operation.

"Teenager" has become quite a dirty word, neither earned or asked for by the majority. One should take note, this unfortunate choice of words makes the work of parents and others sincerely interested in youth very difficult. It would be better if these responsible people could help, think of a constructive program designed to work off the energy and youthful spirits.

Less dirty-dog name calling, possibly more halls in outlying districts opened for teen dances and athletics would be helpful. We do not approve of vandalism or off-beat behavior, neither do we approve of the words "hoodlums," "punks" and other abusive names, possibly directed toward a few but in the mind of the public applying to all teenagers. We do not approve of our children's names and addresses being taken by the police unless they are misbehaving themselves.

It has now become urgent that all interested parents of teenagers form an association within their municipality to offset the adverse publicity, often quite unwarranted, so that complaints and excessive restriction of their citizenship rights can be discussed to the mutual benefit of the parents and the community, thereby relieving the burden on the individual parents to combat ill-considered and unwise actions taken by our elected representatives.

All interested parents are urged either to write or phone GR 9-5179.

MARY AND LINDSAY BOWEN.

4912 Lochside Drive, RR4, Victoria.

Bouquets for a Change

If one takes the trouble sometimes to read the newspapers from cover to cover one is struck by the fact that the complaining irascible "gimme-gimme" pen is the most frequently wielded. This most pronounced where our governing bodies are the targets. It seems to me that a few bouquets instead would not be unappreciated and very much deserved.

First, to our own MLA, John Tisdalle, for his courageous stand on behalf of the Saanich farmers and for the all-round good job he does as our representative. He certainly does try to keep in touch with happenings in his constituency.

Second, to the minister of highways, Mr. Gagliardi, for the wonderful job he has done and is still doing in opening up new roads and improving old ones. It is quite extraordinary what has been accomplished in so short a time.

A bouquet should also go to those who conceived these constructional marvels and to those who carry out the job.

Third, to the minister of parks and open spaces. I can see why motel and hotel owners were complaining. These heavenly parks being opened up in our beauty spots are a continual temptation to folk with "itchy feet" and a love of the out-of-doors—especially those parks on lake shores, with ramp facilities for boat launching.

Fourth, to the federal government through our faithful General Peakes for giving to Sidney the three major projects the ratepayers had been begging for so unsuccessfully in the past, namely, the new ferry wharf, small boat harbor and enlarged post office. It is not just one of these projects, but all three Sidney has received.

(Mrs. T. A.) ANNE AIERS.

Box 87, Sidney.

Postal Leader Ready to Tell Wage 'Facts'

A city postal authority has offered to speak "to any individual or group" and give facts and figures on the recent request, turned down by Finance Minister Donald Fleming, for a salary increase.

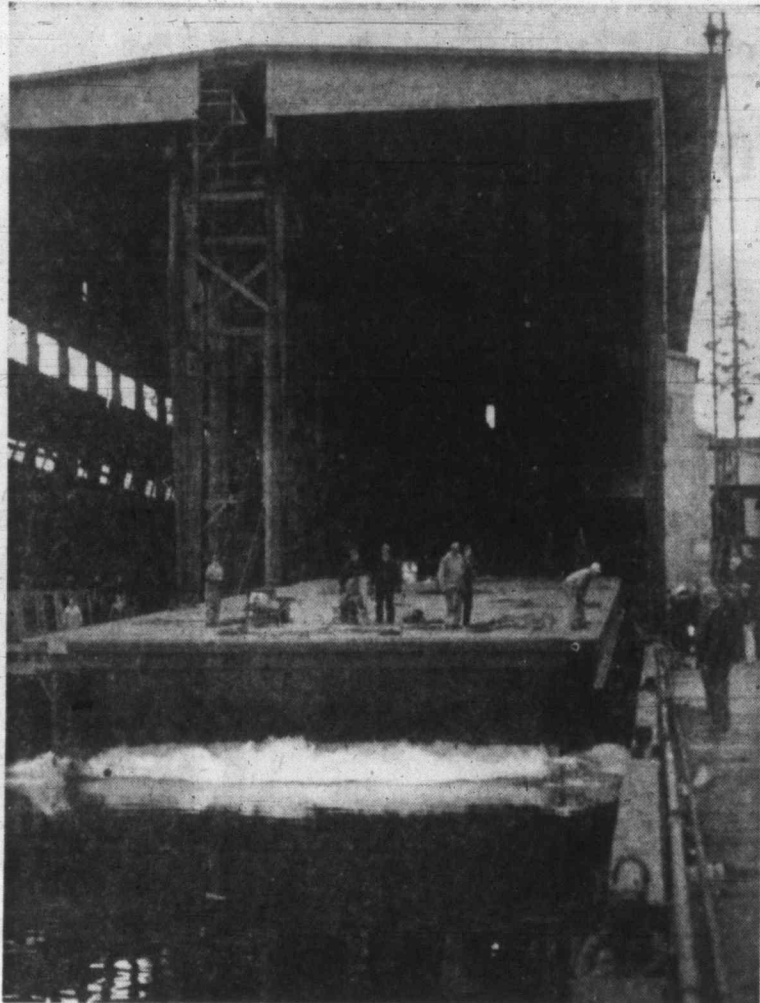

Jim Cox, secretary-treasurer of the Victoria branch of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers, made the offer yesterday as another move in the civil servants' campaign to take their case for wage increases to the public.

"I received a letter from the national office of the Postal Workers' Union which says that Mr. Fleming has been approached about the matter again, but that the results were not encouraging," he said.

"I urge all organized labor, clubs and other organizations to get behind our drive, and I will speak to any of them about it whenever they wish," he added. "I have all the facts and figures, right from the start."

A youth who led city police a chase at such speeds that his own passenger became violently ill, yesterday was upbraided by Magistrate A. L. Thomas for his "obnoxious" behavior and sent to Oakalla for three months.

Railroads Will Face Solid Labor Stand

CHICAGO (UPI)—AFL-CIO president George Meany told 1,000 railroad workers at a mass union rally last night that organized labor would back them to the hilt in a contract fight against railroad management.

"This is no ordinary battle," Meany told the singing, cheering rally. "It is a fight for your existence and your chance to have a say about the conditions under which you work."

Rail Men Ask for More

MONTREAL (CP)—New wage demands expected to cost Canada's major railways about $65,000,000 were submitted Thursday by 15 unions representing about 130,000 Canadian railway workers.

Informed sources in Montreal said the non-operating railway unions—so-called because they represent rail workers who do not actually operate trains—are seeking pay boosts of almost 25 cents an hour in a two-year contract ending in 1961.

7 PER CENT PLUS

It was indicated the unions asked for a seven per cent pay boost plus 12½ cents an hour.

A similar estimate of the demands was reported in Ottawa. The demands were delivered to six railways and an express agency—thus setting in motion Canada's biggest single labor-management negotiations.

No meetings between union and company representatives have been scheduled—and none is expected until the railways have had time to study the proposals. The railways have not commented yet on the demands.

PAY CHIEF BID

It was learned that the unions are going chiefly for higher wages and a few other minor contract changes, dropping a number of demands discussed during the last negotiations which lasted more than a year.

Frank H. Hall, chairman of the non-ops negotiating team, will probably outline the union position at a press conference today.

WIDE RANGE

When the unions were preparing their demands this summer, he had indicated they were considering a wide range of revisions—including severance pay, holiday and vacation allowances, rule changes and provisions to ban contracting-out, a railway method of letting outside firms take on jobs the unions consider within their jurisdiction.

Girl's Parents Oppose Sammy as Son-in-Law

TORONTO (CP)—The parents of dancer Joan Stuart say they are attempting to dissuade their daughter from marrying entertainer Sammy

Davis, Jr.

The Negro singer and the 21-year-old blonde announced

Thursday they are engaged and expect to marry within two months.

Mr. Stuart, a night watchman in a downtown department store, said: "My wife and I disapprove wholeheartedly.

We were shocked and totally unprepared."

Mrs. Stuart said she and her husband are members of the United Church of Canada and had hoped Joan would marry a man of her own religion and color. Davis, 33, has espoused the Jewish faith.

"I have always been very close to her and she has always ... heeded my advice," said

Mrs. Stuart.

Joan is appearing in a Montreal night club revue. "They met last month in Montreal

where Davis had an eight-day club engagement.

In Hollywood where he is re-

said:

"Joan is over 21 and knows her own mind. I love her very much and we want to get married. I don't want to hurt her family, any more than I would want to hurt mine. I hope I can meet her folks and prove to them that I am not the goblin

Daniels, White Wife Call Off Divorce

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Night club

entertainer Billy Daniels and his blonde

Canadian wife have reconciled. It was learned yesterday.

Mrs. Perry Daniels, who first met

Daniels in Montreal, had filed for divorce from the Negro singer. However, a hearing on an order to show cause brought against Daniels was taken off the court calendar today; and it was learned the couple had decided to call off the divorce.

The marriage is the third for Daniels.

Panama Riots Over At One End of Canal

PANAMA CITY (UPI)—The United States Army returned the Pacific end of the Panama Canal zone to the control of civilian police yesterday, indicating no further anti-American demonstrations were expected in the area.

The order to dismantle hastily set-up army machine-gun emplacements and roll up barbed wire barricades came shortly after mid-day. At the same hour free traffic was resumed between the Canal Zone and Panama City for the first time since the outbreak of riots Tuesday.

Extra security measures were continued on the Atlantic end of the canal where army guards stayed on alert until after the end of the annual "Colon Day" celebration at the nearby city of Colon.

Thousands of Panamanians converged on Colon for the festivities, which U.S. authorities feared might bring new anti-American rioting.

Birds Give Planes Right-of-Way

Despite numerous pheasants which calmly forage in the grass alongside runways and taxi strips at Patricia Bay airport, birds are no danger to aircraft, a spokesman said last night.

A pheasant at Vancouver's airport recently flew into the engine of a passenger plane, forcing the pilot to dump 3,000 gallons of fuel and make an emergency landing.

Flare-Ups on Sun Worst Space Peril

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Balloonist Malcolm D. Ross said yesterday that a newly discovered radiation hazard makes manned flight in solar space "appear quite unrealistic" for the time being.

Cmdr. Ross, whose many balloon flights for the office of naval research have made scientific history and won him world acclaim, referred to unpredictable outbursts on the sun which fill solar space with swarms of highly penetrating particles.

This new hazard is in addition to that of the so-called Van Allen belts, zones of energetic particles discovered in the earth's magnetic field by the Explorer satellites and Pioneer moon probes.

The new radiation, Ross

Manned Flight Set Back By Hazard?

said, make the dangers of the Van Allen belts "seem pale by comparison."

Measurements made by University of Minnesota scientists indicate that when a giant solar flare occurs, a space traveller in the sun's system might receive a radiation dose of 1,000 roentgens in an hour.

According to present theory, Ross pointed out, just 30 minutes of exposure to this new hazard in space would prove fatal to half of a spaceship's occupants.

Even at balloon heights of 80,000 to 90,000 feet the radiation intensity during flares amounts to 10 roentgens an hour. At the higher altitudes of space flight, Ross said, shielding would have to be so heavy that it "may not be a practical solution."

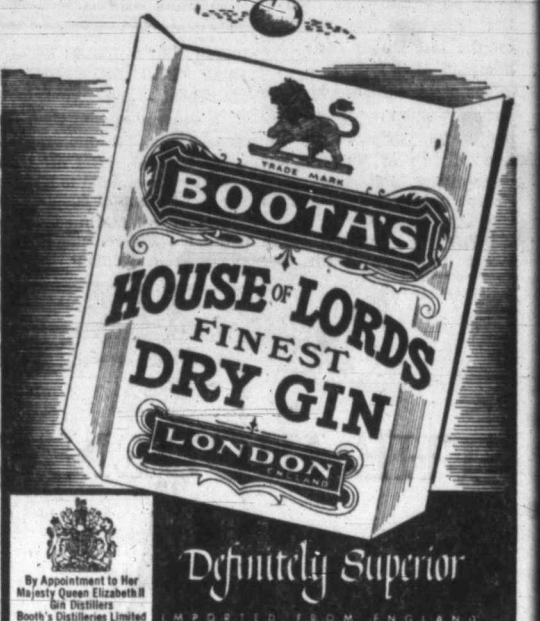

Other scientists have reported that space radiation after solar flares reaches levels 10,000 to 100,000 times normal.

Scientists said the flare radiation would be a danger mainly to deep-space travellers. Evidence obtained with high altitude balloons indicates that solar flares may occur as often as once a month, which would make them much more frequent than had been thought.

'Aggressive Career Coach' Sought by Toronto Argos

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts, out of the Big Four Football Union playoffs for a fourth straight year, announced Wednesday night they're looking for a new head coach.

Managing director Lew Hayman said Steve Owen, who was promoted to the job in mid-season after Argos dropped Hamp Pool, will not be the head coach in 1960.

"Owen will fill a capacity best described as a trouble-shooter," Hayman said. "He will be employed wherever he can help us most."

Hayman said Argos are in the market for "a young, aggressive career coach." He ruled out speculation that Pop Ivy of Chicago Cardinals in the National Football League was considering the job.

Ivy, who formerly coached Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, had a 1960 contract with Chicago and is definitely "not available," Hayman said.

The reference to a "young" coach also appeared to refute reports that Doug Walker of Montreal Alouettes, another Big Four club, was being offered the job.

Perez Retains Crown With 13th Round KO

OSAKA, Japan (UPI)—World flyweight champion Pascual Perez retained his title last night by knocking out Japanese challenger Sadao Yaita in 55 seconds of the 13th round of their scheduled 15-round title bout before 20,000 spectators.

The 33-year-old Perez showed remarkable condition as he battered 24-year-old Yaita with smashing lefts and rights to the body and head. The end came suddenly in the 13th when Perez shot a jolting right to Yaita's stomach as Yaita was stepping away.

Yaita went down and referee Juan Norita of Argentina counted four before the Japanese stood up. Perez quickly followed up with a short right to the jaw and Yaita fell backward flat on his back and was counted out.

Yaita, who won a 10-round decision over Perez in a non-title bout last Jan. 16, was no match for the champion. After a slow start Perez bloodied Yaita's nose in the fourth round and built up steam as the fight went on.

Yaita fought back gamely but at the last it was mainly Perez.

Women and Children First in Victoria Cougars' Camp

Varying degrees of how women and married life affect hockey players are evident among members of Victoria's Western League entry. Here Cougar centre Art Jones wipes supper dishes with the help of daughter Laura, age 2½.

What appears to be an enjoyable nap for Cougars' scrappy Arnie Schmutz is about to be interrupted by son Pat, age 15 months. Pat thinks dad has slept long enough and tugs at the covers to wake him.

Brushing up on his female-luring tactics is lone bachelor on Victoria Cougars' roster, Arlo Goodwin, who boards at Wark Street address. Goodwin strikes contented pose in contrast to married teammates.—(Colonist photos)

Wives, Too

Laycoe Loves Girls

By LARRY ROSE

As one of a vanishing race of colorful personalities who make their living from professional hockey, Norman (Bud) Poile has also shown himself a modest, self-styled authority on women.

It was only a few days ago that Poile addressed a businessmen's meeting in his capacity of general manager and coach of Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League.

Poile's subject was women and their effect on modern professional athletes. He gave a vivid and wordy description of how girl friends and wives hinder athletes, and hockey players in particular.

The following quote from Poile's address summed up his opinion on the matter and appeared in newspapers from coast to coast:

"It's very seldom that you'll find even a young pro athlete who is obsessed with improving himself and his team. His mind is on too many other things, and it is the so-called weaker sex I blame."

Poile gave several examples such as players shopping with their wives, dances, parties, movies and baby-sitting.

Many will agree with Poile. One who will not is manager-coach Hal Laycoe of the Victoria Cougars, who played against Poile while in the National Hockey League.

"What's that man going to do next to get his name in the papers?" roared Laycoe when he read the item.

Laycoe paused from his regular activities for an hour Thursday afternoon at Memorial Arena and, while confessing he is far from an authority on women, readily gave his views.

"There may be some hockey players who let their outside interests have an adverse effect on their hockey but this also happens to sportswriters, insurance salesmen, clerical workers and men in all occupations," he mused.

"Life is based on moderation. I don't know of any sport where an athlete needs to relax more than in professional hockey and that's where dances, parties and movies actually help them."

Laycoe continued, "As far as I'm concerned, the best kind of hockey player to have is the one with a steady girl friend or with a wife and family. In my four years of managing, I've had far less difficulty with the married men."

"Single players just don't have enough interests in which to occupy their spare time."

Laycoe conceded Poile one point. "I'll buy Bud's claim that shopping doesn't help the players. A good place to lose a hockey game is marching through a department store. I think there should be a clause in a player's contract stating that he can't go shopping with his wife or girl friend," said Laycoe.

Poile also contended that players inclined to relax more while on road trips. Laycoe teed off on that one.

"Why is it that every club in pro-hockey has a far better record at home than on the road? Maybe they do what Poile thinks is right while on the road but they don't accomplish half as much," said Laycoe.

"I'm of the opinion that girl friends and wives have helped more players reach the National Hockey League than they have kept out."

"If I remember right, Bud Poile did his share of courting and it's funny he should bring this matter up the way he did," added harried Hal.

The Victoria coach's final words may make him a lifelong enemy of Poile but they couldn't be ignored.

Laycoe finished with "If I didn't know Bud was happily married with a wonderful wife and family, I would think those were the words of a fella who had just lost his best girl friend to a hockey player."

Ladies Take Aim

When Bud Poile announced recently that girl friends and wives hinder professional athletes, hockey players mainly, he immediately became the prime target of these same females.

Many wives of members of Victoria's Western Hockey League team fumed at the statement and right now Poile is a pretty unpopular fellow in Cougarville.

"That's not fair for him to say that," said Mrs. Mary Schmutz. "He certainly didn't give us a chance to defend ourselves. Hockey players' wives are the same as any other married women."

"It's not very nice of him to say that about players' wives. What does he expect us to say in return?" offered Mrs. Jill Jones.

Maybe an apology would be the next best thing.

Royal Roads Wins First Rugby Game

Bill Leishmann's try and a conversion by Wayne Hutchinson carried Royal Roads to its first win of the Victoria Rugby Union season Thursday at Carnarvon Park, a 5-3 decision over Victoria College.

Royal Roads had previously dropped four games. The win moved the cadets into a fifth-place tie with College, now sporting an identical 1-4 record.

Victoria College's only points came from steady Ian Ogle who scored a try.

Red Wing Defence Collapses And Bruins Gain Easy Win

Boston Bruins, their so-called "Uke line" again leading the way, last night continued to strum along in an NHL career that goes back 14 years. Norm Ullman scored the other Detroit goal in the third, unassisted.

Leftwinger Johnny Bucyk scored twice and assisted on the other two goals by his line to pace the Bruins last night. Centre Bronco Horvath, who leads individual scoring with 21 points, scored his 13th goal in 13 games and added his eighth assist and rightwinger Vic Stasiuk also had a goal and an assist.

Boston's big line so far this season has scored 25 of the Bruins' 48 goals and has a combined total of 26 assists. It has been the big factor in a recent drive which has taken the Bruins into a second-place tie with the Wings.

The only bright spot for the Red Wings was Gordie Howe, who scored his team's first goal and then added an assist on Gary Aldcorn's second-period goal—and those two points gave Howe 1,000 points in an NHL career that goes back 14 years. Norm Ullman scored the other Detroit goal in the third, unassisted.

Canadiens tossed four units at the hapless New York Rangers last night and it took a standout display by goal-keeper Lorne Worsley, who blocked 44 shots, to hold the score to 8-2.

The Jean Beliveau-Marcel Bonin-Bernie Geoffrin combination accounted for three goals and four assists with Geoffrin getting two of each; the "kid" line of Ralph Backstrom-Ab McDonald and rookie Billy Hicke had two goals and four assists and the Phil Goyette-Andre Pronovost-Claude Provost unit had two goals and two assists.

Among the several players who benefitted from last night's scoring spurge was Montreal-goalie Jacques Plante, who wore his face mask for the entire game in stopping 18 of 20 shots.

Seeking his fifth successive Vezina Trophy, Plante gained six goals on Terry Sawchuk, who had been beaten only 15 times in his first 11 games.

No Day Off for Eskimos; Bombers Prefer Outdoors

EDMONTON (CP)—There's no rest for the weary.

Edmonton Eskimos normally would have been given a day of rest Thursday after beating British Columbia Lions in the last game of the Western Interprovincial Union play-off semi-final.

But Thursday night Eskimos went through a "loosening up" workout to keep in shape for the best-of-three WIFU finals against the Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

"Otherwise they might not be loose until the weekend," said coach Eagle Keys.

Eskimos picked up numerous minor injuries in beating Lions, 41-7, on the frozen

WIFU All-Stars Selected

Lone Canadian Almost Quit Football

... leads offence

WINNIPEG (CP) — A five-year guard with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who almost quit football this season due to pressure of business, was the only Canadian named to the offensive team in the 1959 Western Interprovincial Football Union all-star selections.

Twenty-five-year-old Ed Kotowich was one of five members of the pennant-winning Bombers to be selected to the offensive squad, picked for The Canadian Press by 35 coaches, sportswriters and football broadcasters in the league cities. Bombers also placed four players on the defensive team.

Second-place Edmonton Eskimos nabbed three spots on offensive and four on defence, including inside linebacker Al Ecuier, first-year import from Notre Dame.

Three Canadians — Harvey Wylie of Calgary, Norm Fieldgate of British Columbia and Steve Patrick of Winnipeg — made the defensive team.

Offensive Team
Halves: Johnny Bright, Edmonton.
Charlie Shepard, Winnipeg.
Gene Filipski, Calgary.
Jackie Parker, Edmonton.
Quarter: Jim Van Pelt, Winnipeg.

Centre: Neil Habig, Saskatchewan.
Guards: Tim Hinton, British Columbia.
Ed Kotowich, Winnipeg.
Tackles: Roger Nelson, Edmonton.
Frank Rigney, Winnipeg.
Ends: Ernie Pitts, Winnipeg.
Ernie Wartick, Calgary.

Defensive Team
Safety: Harvey Wylie, Calgary.

Halves: Kenny Ploen, Winnipeg.
Bill Jessup, British Columbia.

Corner linebacks: Rolfe Miles, Edmonton.
Norm Fieldgate, British Columbia.

Inside linebacks: Garland Warren, Winnipeg.
Al Ecuier, Edmonton.
Middle guard: Steve Patrick, Winnipeg.

Tackles: Art Walker, Edmonton.
Urban Henry, British Columbia.

Ends: Herb Gray, Winnipeg.
Ed Gray, Edmonton.

The selectors leaned towards the generally-accepted offensive formation of twin-full backs, naming the WIFU's ground-gaining leaders — Bright and Bombers' Charlie Shepard, Bright, former Drake star, has led the league's ground-gaining department for the last three years. Shepard, runner-up in the rushing, was making his first appearance on the all-stars since joining Bombers in 1957 after service with Pittsburgh Steelers of the United States National Football League.

Outside running was assigned to Stampede's outstanding half back Filipski, from Villanova University and New York Giants of the NFL, and scoring champion Parker, who hasn't missed the selections since coming to Canada from Mississippi State in 1954.

Although sidelined with an injury in Bombers' second last game, Van Pelt, second-year import from the University of Michigan, had a wide margin at quarterback over Calgary's Joe Kapp, from California, and Parker, who alternated at half and quarter for Eskis this year. The three were the only signal-callers on ballots.

WIFU RECORD
Van Pelt set a WIFU record this year by tossing seven touchdown passes in one game.

Most of Habig's opposition for the centre position came from Winnipeg's George Druxman, a Winnipeg-born player who made the 1956 all-stars.

Hinton won easily in the guard balloting. Kotowich had to beat out teammate Cornel Piper and Eskimos' Mike Knech.

For tackle, repeater Nelson from Oklahoma and Rigney from Iowa each polled more votes than the total for the combined opposition.

A similar situation developed in the selections for the two end spots, with Pitts and Wartick greatly outdistancing the other five named on ballots. Pitts, end from Denver, set two WIFU records in pass receiving this year and equalled another. Wartick, graduate from North Carolina, showed enough catching ability to rate a return from the 1958 team.

Wylie and Ploen, former Iowa quarterback, made it a two-man race for the safety slot. Selectors put Ploen on top for a defensive half spot. Jessup, who spent eight years in the NFL with San Francisco, was an easy choice for the second position.

Miles, now a Canadian, collared one corner line-backer position, but Fieldgate just edged Calgary's Earl Lunsford, from Oklahoma A and M.

Ecuier and Warren, from North Texas State, had to beat out solid performers such as Lions' Ed Sullivan and Ted Tully, Habig and Bombers'

Dave Burkholder for the inside line-backer positions.

Patrick, a seven-year veteran, had little opposition sewing up middle guard for the second straight year.

Eskimos' Walker, from Michigan and Lions' Henry from Georgia Tech stood out in defensive tackle slots.

The Grays — not related — have been putting the rush consistently on opposition quarterbacks all year. Herb, a hardrock from Texas, is considered one of the stalwarts of the Winnipeg defence. Oklahoma's Ed Gray came along fast as defensive end near the end of the 1958 campaign, and has kept up his brilliant work this year.

Lions' Don Lord, in his best season after six years in the loop with B.C. and Edmonton, was not far off the pace.

Dojack Popular

REGINA (CP) — Paul Dojack, one of the top officials in the Western Football Conference and numerous Grey Cup games, topped the polls in voting for the Regina Collegiate board Wednesday night.

While the results were being tabulated, Dojack was refereeing the British Columbia Lions-Edmonton Eskimos football playoff game in Edmonton.

Running under the Regina Citizens Association banner, Dojack piled up 11,835 votes. It was his first venture in civic politics.

Canadian Golfers Score First Win

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (Reuters) — Canada and Britain gained their first victories in the Commonwealth amateur golf tournament Thursday.

Canada, which had suffered heavy defeats to South Africa and Australia on the first two days, gained a surprise 7-2 win over New Zealand. After winning the foursomes 2-1, Canada crushed New Zealand 5-1 in the singles.

Britain narrowly beat Australia, last year's winners, 5-4, taking the foursomes 2-1 and splitting the singles 3-3.

South Africa, now the only undefeated team of the five competing countries, had a bye Thursday.

SOUTH AFRICA FIRST

Positions after three days' play in the five-day tournament, in which all teams play each other, are:

South Africa, played two, won two, lost one; New Zealand, played two, won one, lost one; Australia, played three, won one, lost two; Canada, played three, won one, lost two.

The Canadians found conditions to their liking Thursday. The way in which Stuart Jones, the leading New Zealand player, had to battle all the way against Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont. set the pattern for most of the other singles.

Jones fought back from being 4 down early in the second half but was finally beaten 1 up. The only New Zealand singles winner was Bob Charles who overwhelmed Doug Silverberg of Calgary 7 and 6.

SECOND LOSS

In Australia's second defeat, the decisive shot of the match was the missed six-foot putt by Australian Kevin Hartley on the last hole. It would have given him a birdie 4 to halve the whole and the match with Sandy Sadder. Hartley's putt rimmed-the cup but stayed outside.

Today New Zealand plays South Africa and Britain plays Canada.

Easier Money on the Way?

BY HARRY YOUNG (Colonist Business Editor)

The government borrowed money yesterday at a lower rate than it has been able to do at any time in the past six months. It sold $115,000,000 of 91-day treasury bills at an average yield of 4.83 per cent.

This brought the Bank of Canada discount rate down to 5.08 per cent, a drop of .19 per cent from the previous week, and it also brought in its wake a distinct strengthening of the government bond market.

At its current level of 5.08 per cent, the bank rate is now 1.33 per cent below its all-time high of 6.41 per cent of Aug. 13, and the lowest it has been since April 30, when it was 5.01 per cent.

It is still a long way off the 1.12 per cent established in July, 1958, when the government was making money flow like honey in an effort to bring the recession to a close.

Whether the easier money conditions will continue through the winter months is a matter of conjecture, but the indications are that the government, by suspending its loans on new houses, and other economies, is endeavoring to make existing money go a little farther, and so by lowering the money rate may induce provincial and municipal governments as well as leading corporations to expand their winter work programs of a capital nature.

In response to the lower bank rate some of the new 6 per cent term bonds issued recently became more attractive to investors.

The government 5 1/2 per cents of 1962, which may be extended at that time for an other 17 years at the holders' option, have risen to a premium at 101 bid. They were sold a couple of months ago at 97 1/2.

During the past few days there has also been an indication that the market for the longer term is improving as investors seek a hedge against a possible cheap money era.

Burlington Steel Co. Ltd. is offering its shareholders one new share at $13.25 for each five shares held of record Nov. 23. Subscription list will close Dec. 11. The total offering is 56,000 shares.

An uptrend in the market prices for leading Canadian newsprint stocks is being limited by the U.S. dollar exchange rate which has placed the Canadian dollar at more than 5 1/2 cents premium.

With three-quarters of their newsprint sold in the U.S. and paid for in U.S. dollars, the Canadian companies are losing up to $6.50 a ton on exchange alone.

Despite this more market interest is being taken in such issues as Powell River, Consolidated Paper and Price Bros.

between Canadian and U.S. dollar values would help the industry tremendously.

Some companies are recording an increase in sales of over 15 per cent from a year ago, but so far most of the advantage has been absorbed in the unfavorable dollar exchange.

Interest is being taken in such issues as Powell River, Consolidated Paper and Price Bros.

Market Weakens For B.C. Lumber

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's lumber industry, barely back on its feet after the summer's 69-day strike of coast woodworkers, has run into marketing problems.

Spokesmen say the industry is faced with slipping lumber prices, a weak United States market and new Russian competition in the United Kingdom.

They anticipate a rough winter because:

1. Prices for fir dimension shipped by coast producers to U.S. markets have fallen $7 a thousand board feet in recent weeks.

2. The U.S. Atlantic Coast market appears abnormally quiet and builders seem inclined to wait and see how low prices will drop before placing orders.

3. A slight pickup in the U.K. market may be absorbed by Russian competition.

Russia has already scheduled 216,000,000 board feet available for delivery next year and her total 1960 exports to the U.K. may top 800,000.

All-Canadian Changes Hands

VANCOUVER (CP) — Capital Management Ltd., has assumed the management of All-Canadian Funds, a $24,000,000 mutual fund.

W. A. Arbuckle and W. J. Borrie, president and chairman of Capital, said All-Canadian Funds was formed in 1954 with assets of $100,000.

Capital is controlled by Power Corporation of Canada Ltd., Great Britain and Canada Investment Corporation and Canadian Power and Paper Securities Ltd.

The statement said this is the second time that Power Corporation has expanded its interests in western Canada. In 1957 it acquired a "leading position" in Imperial Investment Corporation, an $85,000,000 Canadian Acceptance Company with headquarters in Vancouver.

Mr. Borrie and Mr. Arbuckle will be directors of the new company as will N. Ivory, M. R. Peers and P. N. Thomson of Montreal and D. W. Mitchell and A. F. Wright of Vancouver.

Halloween Hangover Silences Jittery Town

ARKONA, Ont. (CP)—This little western Ontario village is nursing a monster hangover from the effects of its riotous Halloween.

Two provincial police officers have moved in from Sarnia to an attempt to find ringleaders of the Halloween disturbance in which police were pelted with eggs and stones when they tried to stop teenagers from setting fires to a variety of stolen objects on the main street.

Armed Sgt. John Clegg, the town's part-time, unpaid policeman, has sent his pregnant wife and their four children to visit relatives in Toronto following veiled threats against his family.

SHOCKED, ASHAMED
Reeve Bernard Bartlett says most of the 480 residents of the village 40 miles northwest of London are shocked and ashamed over the incidents.

But the two provincial police constables have charged that the villagers refused to give evidence against the persons involved.

Three of four teenagers charged with creating a disturbance have pleaded guilty and were fined $25 this week. The other youth is awaiting trial.

'GET OUT'
Sgt. Clegg said a middle-aged man came to his house Sunday and declared: "The best thing for you and your family to do is get out of town."

"If the villagers tolerate this thing there is nothing we can do," said provincial police Sgt. Allan Campbell. "We can't manufacture evidence."

'Glowing Objects' Balloons

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Three young boys here have the laugh on RCAF officials who said "glowing objects" over the city last week were "atmospheric phenomena."

The boys admitted Thursday the objects were home-made versions of lighter-than-air balloons.

Hundreds saw the objects. They were described as being 1,000 feet up, like balls of fire blinking on and off.

The boys covered light, wooden cone-shaped frames with tissue paper, then attached a gasoline-soaked blob of cotton at the base.

The hot air expanded when the gas burned, the cones rose, and the people were mystified. "We didn't pick anything up on radar," said the air force.

Wounded Bear Loose In Chemainus Area

CHEMAINUS (CP)—Children were kept in their homes after school Wednesday as hunters moved through the woods in search of a wounded bear. Residents feared the bear may have become vicious after it was struck by a car on the highway.

Firemen Catch, Not Jump

Hose-drying and drill tower at the new headquarters fire hall "suits the chief's purposes exactly," Ald. Austin Curtis said yesterday.

He reported on the situation in reply to a claim by Ald. Elmer McEwen that the tower had been erected in the wrong place and couldn't be used for jumping practice.

"Firemen aren't taught to jump. They're taught to catch people jumping," Ald. Curtis said, "and a dummy or a heavy sawdust ball will do."

Fragrant Awakening

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

With rose planting time upon us, I think it is about time we had a chat about the climbers and ramblers, for there is no finer subject for clothing a house wall or trellis. And there is a more delightful morning greeting than to awaken in a room with the windows wreathed with roses, especially if they are fragrant.

To get the best from our wall roses, the site needs careful preparation. Not only do the plants live longer than the bush and standard types that we grow in our open flower beds, but their roots run very deep. The soil should be worked, therefore, to a depth of at least 30 inches, with plenty of mellow old manure and bonemeal added. A rose should never be set in closer than 14 inches from a wall, for a wall site is notoriously dry, and there is always some risk of soil contamination from free chemicals in concrete and stucco.

Some kind of support must be erected on which to train the growths as they develop. This may be a wooden trellis treated with a preservative, or galvanized wires strained between eyelets fastened into the brickwork or stucco. Whatever is used, it should be so arranged that some air can circulate behind the plant itself.

Two factors have an important bearing on your choice of varieties—the direction in which the wall faces, and the color of the wall. Neither the white nor pale yellow roses show up very well against a white wall, nor any of the red varieties against brickwork. Some of the red roses fade badly under too many hours of sunshine, and these are best planted against an east wall.

One of my favorite rambler roses is Albertine, for it has everything one could wish for in a rose—fragrance, earliness, vigor, and an exquisite coppery-pink shade when its reddish buds open. These are set off to perfection against the rich green foliage, which seems to be singularly resistant to pests and diseases.

Most of the ramblers put forth their flowers in one big flush of bloom, but New Dawn, a delicate pink, continues for several months. Paul's Scarlet, another old favorite, is not quite but almost as long in bloom, and its flowers are very nearly sunproof.

Among the climbing sports of hybrid-teas, I like the crimson Etoile de Hollande, the pink and gold Madame Butterfly, and the orange and scarlet Mrs. Sam McGredy, all of which are fragrant. Climbing Peace has been a great disappointment to me, for while Peace is and always will be my favorite rose, its climbing sport does out its blooms in a miser-like fashion, and there are never enough flowers to make a display.

One problem which crops up frequently in my mail is what to grow on a sunless north-facing wall, and even here it is possible to have roses. The white Mme. Alfred Carriere, the bluish pink Dr. Van Fleet, and the glowing scarlet Allen Chandler all perform reasonably well on a north wall.

Generally speaking, I don't care very much for the single-flowered "wild" roses, but that incomparable climber Mermaid is an exception. It has very large single yellow blooms like delicate porcelain saucers, it remains in bloom all summer long, and its lovely foliage remains evergreen in all except the hardest winters. Mermaid is at home on a north or east-facing wall, and its only faults are its murderous thorns and the fact that it takes several seasons before it starts to climb the wall.

Astaire Does It Again

Humor, Pace, Charm
By Talented Team

NEW YORK (UPI) — What can Fred Astaire do for an encore after winning nine, count 'em, Emmys with his first TV special?

The answer came. Wednesday night on NBC-TV. Another fast, highly entertaining show, his color special was filled with tasteful music, good humor, crisp, fluid, youthful dancing and Astaire's charm.

I guess part of the story is that Astaire, the lad with loquacious legs and fluent frame, surrounds himself with talent that, like himself, makes hard work seem easy. His gorgeous partner, Barrie Chase, was better Wednesday than she was last year.

Naturally, comparisons must be made of Astaire's two shows. As I look back on the first, I feel that it had an edge in the originality-informality departments. It also had more of Astaire the dancer. But Wednesday's had a feeling of greater cohesiveness, direction and smoothness.

(There was some disconcertingly abrupt splicing of the tape in the "That Face" number, however, to mar the otherwise butter-smooth production.)

The opening number, "The Afterbeat," started the show off with much gusto and bounce and this was followed with a pace-changing, misty and moving "That Face." Drummer Alvin Stoller—another of Astaire's "no-sweat" friends—joined Mr. A. in a humor-laced drum-and-dance specialty.

Jonah Jones and his trumpet took over the stage for some easy-to-take jazz and then Jones and Astaire took part in an overly-cute, meaningless bit of dialogue. A moody, superbly staged and choreographed "Night Train" number followed.

Every show this season has gone beatnik and Astaire's was no exception. Miss Chase and Astaire kidded a "word jazz" number called, "My Baby," and this was TV-beatnik satire at its best. "Waltzing Matilda," featuring Barrie Chase, was a completely successful spoof.

Next came a treat: Astaire singing, in white tie and tails. He ran through a handful of the many great tunes he has introduced and although he has added a contrived lurch to his voice, he is still a masterful pop singer.

I won't try to figure out whether this was a nine, 20 or one Emmy show. But I'll go along with anyone who wants to pin some more medals on old dad's chest. It was a warm, unusually enjoyable hour.

Hollywood Today

By Sheila Graham

What's in a Name? Money!

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — "To please you," said producer Al Zugsmith, "I'm changing the title of 'Teacher Was A Sexpot' to 'Teacher Was Not A Sexpot.'" It took Al two years to clear the title with the Motion Picture Producers Association, and I think he'll be sticking to it. "Actually," he explained, "Mamie Van Doren, who will wear high-neck dresses, battles all the way through the picture—not 'for her honor,' but to lose the 'sexpot' label."

Brigitte Bardot will name her baby, expected in three months, "Nicholas." How do I know? I eavesdropped at the Hollywood Brown Derby, when French-American star Eddie Constantine, enchanted with the novelty of a telephone at his table, called Brigitte in Paris. "What if it's a girl?" Eddie asked BB. "It's got to be a boy," replied the provocative Poochie.

"Baby Sex" has been changed, by request, to "The Eager Young Girl," which, says producer Al Zugsmith, "takes up where 'Blue Denim' leaves off."

Metro's biggie, "Ben Hur," will run three hours and 33 minutes. The $15,000,000 investment opens here Nov. 24, with all the money going to the University of Southern California's scholarship fund for needy medical students.

Jean (Joan of Arc) Seberg flew in over the top of the world from Paris, minus her French husband. No trouble. Jean is here to make a movie.

Leslie Caron, homesick for husband Peter Hall and their two children, flew to England for two weeks, then must return here for more work on "The Subterraneans."

George Stevens has rented the fancy $26,000 head office at the Hal Roach studio, where he will prepare "The Greatest Story Ever Told."

Brave Boy Honored

Bill Brown, 18-year-old Grade 12 student at Belmont Junior-Senior High School, yesterday was presented with a Royal Canadian Humane Association certificate for courage and quick thinking. The presentation was made by RCMP Cpl. J. H. Armstrong in a ceremony in the school.

The award recalled the Jan. 3 rescue of Cynthia Ann Williams, aged three, from an icy pond near the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Garry Williams, on Sooke Road. Alerted by his mother, Mrs. A. J. Brown, 3202 Happy Valley Road, Bill plunged into the deep pond after breaking the ice, and brought the child to safety.

Rat-Ridden Kennels Described in Court

Operator Convicted Of Causing Suffering

NANAIMO—A story of filthy, rat-infested kennels was unfolded by six prosecution witnesses in Nanaimo police court yesterday.

Another story, of impeccably clean, well-kept premises, was, on the other hand, related by nine defence witnesses.

All were giving evidence at the trial of Mrs. S. E. Raynor, operator of the Yarron Kennels at South Wellington.

Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts convicted the woman of causing unnecessary suffering to 25 dogs by failing to provide adequate food, water, shelter and care. He remanded her for sentence for one week.

A charge alleging that local SPCA inspector Otto Comis assaulted Patty Ann Raynor, Miss Nanaimo for 1959, by attempting to kiss her, was adjourned until Nov. 25.

Miss Raynor, 17, told the court yesterday she had helped her mother clean out the dog kennels only moments before the SPCA investigation party arrived on the premises Sept. 26.

Crown prosecutor Harold Hine remarked that it was amazing how quickly the kennels became so filthy and smelly in so short a time. Magistrate Beevor-Potts agreed.

He had heard SPCA special investigator Walter F. Taylor of Vancouver describe how he had arrived about noon with Comis, Nanaimo veterinarian Dr. John Sheehan, and RCMP constable Kenneth Brand.

"We visited an old iron shed, poorly constructed, with many gaps in the iron sheeting which would cause terrific drafts, Inspector Taylor said.

Polish-Canadian Leader: Russians Liars On Disarmament

World disarmament "will only work if all the countries are honest—and I have never known the Russians to tell the truth."

The man who said that was Z. J. Jaworski, president of the Canadian Polish Congress, interviewed here yesterday at the legislative buildings.

He was in Victoria to pay a courtesy visit to Premier Bennett and also to pass along some of the views of B.C.'s 16,000 Polish-Canadians. There are 300,000 in Canada.

Of Khrushchev's total disarmament proposal, Mr. Jaworski said, "He was only talking to make appeasement."

"Khrushchev now needs the help of the Western world because perhaps he has trouble with Red China."

"The Chinese Reds have started ignoring some of Russia's suggestions about industry and other things, you know," he said.

The Polish-Canadian engineer—he came to Canada in 1942 with 700 other Polish engineers "to help the war effort"—feels that "Dulles-type statesmanship is the answer."

"The West needs a strong policy toward Russia," he said, "and a gradual disarmament plan with special control of all countries."

Mr. Jaworski described the Soviet premier's tour of the United States as "purely propaganda—so was his speech to the UN."

Mr. Jaworski left last night for Edmonton and a meeting with Premier Ernest Manning.

Through Filthy Window

He said the dogs, older dogs and puppies, were in wire enclosures of various sizes. There were no outside runs provided, and the only daylight in the building was that filtering through cracks in the sheet and a "diffused light" through a "filthy" window.

He described an overpowering smell from "dirty, damp straw" beneath which, he said, was a layer of about a quarter-inch of "poop." Moving the straw, he saw rat holes, and spotted one live rat in the building.

There were no water facilities, Mr. Taylor said, and no heat was provided.

He admitted under cross-examination by lawyer Stanley Wardill that he had not removed the 25 dogs, although he was empowered to do so.

Dr. Sheehan said three of 25 dogs were "not in good state of health." Their skin was in poor shape, and they were of unsightly appearance, he testified.

Mrs. E. I. Barker, a school teacher, and Mrs. Alice Kinch, a Duncan nurse, said they had visited the kennels a month earlier to verify rumors they had heard about Yarron Kennels.

Both said the stench from the kennels was overwhelming. They said they had been shown through the premises by Mrs. Raynor, but Mrs. Raynor denied ever seeing them before.

Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts commended the two women for coming forward and said he believed their story. Both operate kennels in their spare time in the Duncan area.

New Evidence Of Vegetation Seen on Mars

WASHINGTON (AP)—There is new evidence of possible plant life on Mars.

Dr. William M. Sinton of Lowell Observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz., said Thursday he has evidence suggesting the possible existence of plants greatly different from those on earth and perhaps superior in yields, edible or otherwise. The astronomer discussed his research in the technical journal Science.

Sinton said his evidence of vegetation suggests that plant life covers the large triangular-shaped area known as Syrtis Major, or The Great Bog.

Nanaimo—Not Victoria Marks Guy Fawkes Day

NANAIMO—Victoria may be the most "British" city in the province, but only Nanaimo observes Guy Fawkes Day, a traditional English celebration.

Guy Fawkes Day fell yesterday, Nov. 5, the 354th anniversary of Fawkes' attempt to blow up the British Houses of Parliament, together with King James I, by barrels of gunpowder stacked in the cellar of the parliament buildings.

The custom was brought to Nanaimo more than 100 years ago.

Explodes Into Flame

Family Homeless After Alberni Blaze

ALBERNI—A Dutch family of five was left homeless last night when their rented house exploded into flames early in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Westerman and their three young sons lost everything but the clothes they were wearing when fire consumed the Grandview Road house within minutes of the first flames.

There was some insurance coverage on the furnishings of the house. J. P. Olander was in charge of the rental of the house for an estate.

Mrs. Westerman was in shock, crying after the accident. RCMP detachment from Alberni attended.

It is believed the fire started when cooking fat boiled over from a fry pan and ignited on a hot element. The house was apparently filled with fumes from an oil stove at the time.

Mrs. Westerman and three-year-old Harry were alone in the rural area house when the fire started.

"I had only time to pick Harry up in the living room and get out," he young mother said. She ran with the child to the home of neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Frakes, a few hundred feet away.

Mr. Westerman, employed on the "graveyard" shift at a local mill, had gone out a few minutes before the fire with one of his older boys to collect the other boy who was at an aunt's house in Port Alberni.

The two boys are Rudy, 7, and Henry, 5.

The family had lived in the five-room, timber-framed house since August. They spent the night with relatives in the district.

Ship Contracts

Scurrah Wail Re-Echoed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Provincial Liberal leader Ray Perrault has joined Mayor Percy Scurrah of Victoria in criticizing the federal government for awarding two shipbuilding contracts to drydocks in eastern Canada.

The government announced Wednesday the successful tenders for contracts to build two West Indies freighters had been submitted by shipbuilding companies in the maritimes.

"The Progressive Conservatives have allowed the west coast drydock industry to languish," Mr. Perrault said in a prepared statement.

He said yards in Vancouver and Victoria should have been awarded the contracts so they could maintain their standards and skilled labor if it was needed in the event of a war.

Mr. Perrault criticized the federal government for subsidizing "everything from food to ferry services" and passing up the plight of the west coast industry.

Mayor Scurrah said shipyards will have to close if they do not get any new contracts.

U.S. Foreign Policy 'Timid, Vacillating'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former assistant to President Eisenhower appraises U.S. diplomacy and foreign policy in recent years as static, timid, vacillating and unrealistic.

Lack of boldness and creative purpose, writes Emmet John Hughes, have risked losing Africa, Asia and much of Europe to Communism.

Hughes expresses these views in a 306-page book, "America the Vincible" (Doubleday).

An official of Time and Life magazines, Hughes was on Eisenhower's staff in the 1952 and 1956 election campaigns and served as a White House

'Full Speed Sideways' For Oriana

LONDON (AP)—Britain's largest post-war liner will be able to pull out of dock without tugs. The captain just has to shout "full speed sideways."

A spokesman of the Orient Line said the transverse-propulsion system on the new 40,000-ton Oriana is worked by pumps which force out water on either side of the vessel, according to which way the captain wants to go.

Licensing Bylaw Test Case Ruling Reserved

Judgment was reserved by Magistrate A. I. Thomas yesterday in a Saanich police court case designed to test Saanich's commercial vehicle licensing bylaw.

Heaney Cartage & Storage Ltd., 521 Bastion, was charged with making a delivery of fuel oil to a Saanich home without its truck being licensed to do so.

D. Marsh Gordon, representing the company, had pleaded not guilty. M. L. Drake appeared for the municipality.

Roy H. Wootton, Saanich licence inspector, told the court that at 10:30 a.m. Sept. 17 a Heaney truck delivered fuel oil to 2851 Maynard, in the municipality, without having a fuel oil licence.

This was confirmed by John S. Taylor, Saanich building inspector.

Mr. Gordon maintained that the bylaw in question was defective and ultra vires, and that the company did not come within its scope.

He argued that under the Municipal Act a firm is taxable at its place of business.

Only office of the company, he said, was at 521 Bastion in Victoria.

Mr. Drake said the municipality's point was a simple one: It had the authority to pass the bylaw, and had done so.

"The bylaw is not unreasonable," he said. "We have had no other complaints."

Loud reaction of a man sentenced for obstructing a police officer in city court yesterday cost him an addition to his jail term.

Robert Charles Jackson, Craigflower Road, had pleaded guilty to obstructing Const. Keith Hollett when the latter arrested a companion Wednesday on Yates. Jackson, said the officer, refused to go away and finally gave the officer a push.

'I'll Get You Next Time'

He was arrested and taken to the station, where he struggled further with the officer, and was reported to have exclaimed:

"I'll get you next time... I'll have a knife in my hand."

Magistrate A. I. Thomas told Jackson:

"The court takes an exceedingly dim view of behavior like this. If we can't observe the laws and the duties of the police... we'll have chaos. Six months in Oakalla."

"Six months!" Jackson exclaimed loudly, then headed for the jail door from court.

"Bring that man back in here," said the Magistrate, and when Jackson was again in the box, went on:

"Another two months for contempt of court."

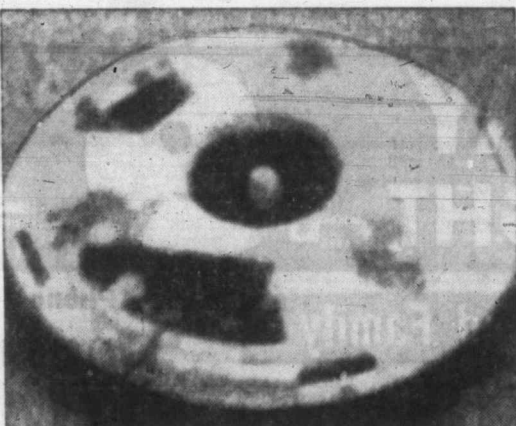

Jackson raised his finger toward the judge, then turned and went out, muttering.

Six youths charged in Saanich court with breaking, entering and theft Oct. 30 at Growers Winery, 3948 Quadra, were re-charged yesterday.

On first appearance of five of the men, some had elected trial by magistrate, some by judge and jury. Yesterday defence counsel Alan Bigelow, representing the sixth man, indicated to court that all now wished trial by magistrate.

Fleeting not guilty and remanded to Nov. 10 for trial were Arthur Allan Reeve, 1344 Pandora; Lawrence Montgomery, 633 Cornwall; Robert Malcolm, 1425 Fernwood; Jack Goodman and Edmund Adkins, both of 1641 Cedar, and Ronald Victor Morry, no fixed address.

Also in Saanich court Donald A. Thomson, 2811 Dean, pleaded guilty to installing an oil burner without complying with fire marshal's regulations and was fined a minimum $15.

Fate of Canada's flying saucer rests with U.S.

Stiff Tests Ahead

'Saucer' Politics

By JAMES M. MINIFIE WASHINGTON (TNS)

Canada's Flying Saucer—the Avrocar under development by Avro Aircraft of Canada—has a long road to follow as it moves from development tests to evaluation, acceptance and production.

Each stage is beset with difficulties which are time consuming unless the project has been given U.S. "crash priority"—which the Avrocar has not.

Now undergoing first tests at Malton, outside Toronto, the Avrocar is expected to be shipped this month to Moffat Air Force base in California for further study. The U.S. Air Force is considering buying the craft—which could replace the helicopter—for the U.S. Army.

Caution with which the U.S. Defence Department is viewing the Avrocar is dictated by:

1. A dozen U.S. companies are working on vertical takeoff machines designed to do the same job;

2. 1960 is a U.S. election year and any suggestion that Canada might be given a fat contract over worldstarved American aircraft companies would be political dynamite.

The main question is: Will it function?

Britain Recalls Guy's Plot

LONDON (Reuters)—Millions of rockets soared into the sky throughout Britain Thursday night in memory of Guy Fawkes, whose plot to blow up Parliament in 1605 fizzled.

Police arrested about 60 revellers among hundreds of celebrating Londoners.

SHORT LIFE

Claude Duval, the notorious highwayman, was 27 years old when he was hanged in England in 1670.

Shouts About Sharing Give Ottawa Shudders

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker has again put the shudders into some of his advisers by talking publicly about Canada-United States production-sharing.

Not that these officials aren't proud of what has been achieved. But, they believe, the more said about it the more chance of the program coming apart through strong objections from U.S. industry.

Production-sharing is the scheme whereby the U.S. defence industry is persuaded and encouraged to place more contracts with Canadian companies.

The attitude here is "softly, softly, catchee monkey"—the monkey being U.S. contracts for Canadian defence goods.

Officials feel that if word gets around widely in the U.S. that American firms are placing more orders in Canada, Congressmen, especially those in surplus labor areas, are going to protest vociferously.

There has already been scattered criticism in the U.S. of the production-sharing program.

Canada got a big concession when the U.S. agreed to waive the Buy-American Act on defence goods. The act imposes a six-per cent penalty on Canadian tenders for U.S. contracts.

Old Friends, Bygone Battles Will Be Remembered by Veterans Wednesday

War veterans of Greater Victoria will recall old friends and bygone battles Wednesday during Remembrance Day services in the city and surrounding municipalities.

Almost 1,000 veterans are expected to parade, with service units, from Humboldt and Government to the Cenotaph on the legislative building grounds Nov. 11 for services at 11 a.m.

Fall-in for members of Britannia, Pro Patria and Naval Veterans' branches of the Canadian Legion, and Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada will be 10 a.m.

Parading with them will be members of the Royal Canadian Navy, the PPCLI, auxillary RCAF, army militia units, and women's auxiliaries.

In addition, a memorial service will be held Sunday at 4:30 p.m. at Christ Church Cathedral.

On Wednesday, cadets from HMCS Venture will mount guard at the Cenotaph from 6:30 a.m. until 10 a.m., when Navy, Army, RCAF and

RCMP personnel will take over.

Also attending the service at the Cenotaph will be service cadets, Boys Scouts and Girl Guides.

Invocation will be pronounced by the Rev. A. I. Higgins of First United Church, himself a former squadron leader in the RCAF, while Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross will take the salute from a reviewing stand in front of the Empress Hotel.

Services will also be held in Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich.

Oak Bay's service will be held at 3 p.m. at the Memorial on Beach Drive in the Uplands, weather permitting. Otherwise, it will be held in Oak Bay United Church. Officiating will be Canon H. J. Jones of St. Mary's Church, Rev. Alexander Calder of Oak Bay United, and Rev. Richard Murgold of St. Mary's.

In Esquimalt, the service will take place at 11 a.m. in Memorial Park, with Rev. William Hills of St. George the Martyr Church, Cadboro Bay, giving the address. Veterans, permanent force units, and Scouts and Guides will take part. Commodore John Deane will take the salute.

In Saanich A. E. Horner, 1729 Kisher, who conducted that municipality's first Armistice Day service in 1919, will again be in charge of ceremonies at 2 p.m. at Gore Park on Shelbourne.

Water Rate Boost On Way for City

School Costs

They Could Be Worse

Victoria school costs would be higher today if the city had continued to operate its own school district, W. C. Gelling, chairman of the finance committee of the Greater Victoria school board, said yesterday.

He estimated operating costs of a single district would be proportionately more than for a consolidated district.

Mr. Gelling was asked to comment on City Manager Wyatt's report estimating Victoria is paying much more than its share of education costs in the Greater Victoria school district. (See Page 1.)

The school trustee said he hadn't had a chance to study the report but said the school board had to operate on the basis of property taxation in apportioning school costs.

ART FLESHER

Seen in Passing

Art Flesher hard at work. (He has been employed for 13 years by the provincial government as a carpenter. He and his wife, Patricia, have two children, Wendy, 14, and Ricky, 9. Art's hobbies are building boats, leather work and fishing.) ... E. D. B. Hawshaw explaining the close watch that is kept on Symphony finances ... Trev Barlow busily working on two Jaycee committees at once and being accused of "moonlighting" ... Sam Carter getting off his treasurer's report despite the unruly assistance of Doug Peaker ... Elmer McEwen "supervising" an excavation project on Douglas Street ... Jim Ackinlose taking some of the shocks out of life ... Ed Hardy counting decorations for the Policemen's Ball ... Ray Shaver polishing his car.

Professions Really Care

It isn't the "professional" division's fault that the Community Chest drive, last night totalling $253,000, is falling short of its $325,000 objective.

Chest officials yesterday paid tribute to the professional category for raising $17,047, with more to come. The group's target was $16,900.

Of this division, first to go over the top, campaign chairman Eric Mallet said "This is truly a feather in the collective caps of the professional people of this area. They have proved, in a very substantial way, that they do care."

To Keep Musicians

'In-Between' Symphony?

By BRUD DELANY

What becomes of the 1,000 young musicians who graduate from Greater Victoria schools every year and then disappear? Question was posed this week, at a meeting of the board of directors of the Victoria Symphony Society by director Dr. J. F. K. English.

His suggestion could possibly result in the formation of a third Victoria symphony orchestra—on a level some where between the present junior and senior symphonies.

"Surely we can get more than a half-dozen of them," he said. "There is an area in there that has a lot of potential."

Dr. English says there should be a place for them to come together and continue their musical training.

"It's not right that there's no place for them to go after they've had four or five years of music at school. They drop out and then they disappear."

"That's a considerable amount of waste," he said.

It would benefit not only the young musicians themselves, but the community, too, he said, adding that many of them could possibly graduate to the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

Dr. English said he would like to see interested people come forward—not only musicians, but those who would like to help them financially.

Symphony society president Jack Barracough said last night, "I would be most happy to see any interested person come forward."

"There's no doubting the need here for such a project," he said, citing the requests from time to time by ex-student musicians to sit in with the senior symphony.

"Our society is definitely interested in doing something for these younger people," he said.

But the aid from the society would have to be other than financial, he said, pointing to the society's large annual deficit.

"If enough people request our help," said the society president, "then we could ask and get Canada Council grants for their musical tuition." Several musicians are currently receiving such grants here, he said, and are being trained by local professional musicians.

"Perhaps they could be formed into another orchestra, an intermediary symphony, somewhere between our junior and senior symphonies," he said.

City Must Act Official Says

A first step toward higher water rates for Victorians was taken yesterday.

City council finance committee recommended that the city water commissioner be instructed to revise the rates upward.

The city has known for some time that its wholesale rate paid to the Greater Victoria water board will be progressively increased in the next few years because of large capital expenditures planned by the board. The wholesale rate is expected to be nearly doubled in the next four or five years.

POOR RETURN

But even at the present rate, City Comptroller Dennis Young told finance committee, the city is receiving a poor return in its retailing of water.

"If the rates are not revised, we may only break even next year," he said.

Finance committee received from the city comptroller and decided to forward to the intermunicipal committee a report opposing pension increases for former employees. Increases would have to be borne entirely by the taxpayers.

ACT CONSISTENTLY

Mr. Young suggested that council must act consistently with its policy in assisting other needy persons.

He expressed "every sympathy" with municipal pensioners but pointed out that the needy who were not eligible for old-age pensions could obtain social welfare assistance.

The committee also decided to take up with the intermunicipal committee Goodwill Enterprises' request for tax exemption or an equivalent grant.

OTHER DECISIONS

Other committee decisions: To recommend payment, from contingency funds, of the $1,426 of the city's share of the Capital Region Planning Board budget which council cut out of its own budget last May.

To recommend taking $2,500 from land-sales funds for lighting of the new parking lot on the public market site and $4,800 for parking meters for the lot, but to look for a way of repaying the money into the fund from parking lot revenue.

Toastmaster Clubs Plan Fall Rally

The five toastmasters clubs of Victoria will hold their jointly-sponsored fall meeting at 7 p.m. Saturday at Holyrood House, 2315 McBride.

Special guests at the dinner meeting will be District 21 (B.C.) governor Ralph MacColl of Nanaimo and international director Robin Dick of Vancouver.

Plaster Crashes

City Hall's Top Floor 'Disgrace'

Upper floors of the city hall are an "utter disgrace," Ald. Arthur Dowell said yesterday.

His remark stemmed from a request for authority to spend $600 on ceiling work in the city engineer's office and the hall outside the council chamber. About a square yard of old plaster crashed down Wednesday.

"The ceiling in my general office has been leaking for three years," City Comptroller Dennis Young reported. "We put buckets here and there on the floor to catch the drops."

No Leads In Holdup At Garage

No progress has been made in solving Tuesday night's $178 robbery at the All Star Texaco service station, 1647 Fort, police said last night.

Detectives doubted whether the lone attendant, Everett Potter, 61, who was shoved into a back room by a masked bandit wielding a steel bar, would be able to recognize the man if he saw him again.

Neither Driver Hurt When School Bus Hit

A commissionaire driving to work at the seaplane base at Victoria Bay Airport early yesterday collided with a school bus about 50 feet from the gate.

The accident occurred at the intersection of West Saanich and Willingdon roads. The school bus was empty apart from the driver.

The driver of the car was Goldwin Y. Kirkpatrick, 1948 Keating Cross Road. The school bus was driven by Melvin R. Griffith, 10233 Patricia Bay Highway. Neither man was injured.

Dark Cloud of Pessimism Fogs World Disarmament

Distrust Too Prevalent Says 'Man In Street'

Mutual distrust among nations is proving an almost insurmountable barrier to world disarmament and world peace.

This was the main point of several brought out yesterday in a "man on the street" survey on the question of world disarmament. The survey showed that almost everyone favors disarmament, but that most are viewing it through a dark cloud of pessimism.

There were three main schools of thought. Most claimed world disarmament is impossible now or at any time. Several expressed the faith that some day it may come, and a small minority claimed it is feasible now.

The angle of mutual distrust was the biggest argument of the first group. They claimed, and backed up their arguments by looking at the political history of the world during the past 10 years, that nations will never achieve enough harmony to bring about disarmament.

"It will never come, not so long as this old world turns," said Mrs. F. J. Martens, 1034 View Street. "Selfishness is ruling every corner of it. Besides, I don't think the Russians are ever going to stop fighting."

Much the same opinion was expressed by J. A. Neale, 28 Douglas Street.

Always One Cheat

"General world conditions make it impossible, and it's not entirely practical because there would always be one country ready to cheat. It's human nature to try and get ahead, and some would try it no matter what the odds."

"It's not possible and it's not a good idea," Chuck Corbin, 3131 Delta, stated emphatically. "I'm afraid the way I feel is, I don't trust anybody, and why should they trust me?"

This, in various forms, was repeated again and again by the sceptics called. "Who is to say everyone will do it?" said Ronald Starkey, 2839 Knotty

Pine. "Everyone might to start with, but what happens if someone changes their mind?"

"If we disarm," said his wife, Mary Lou, "someone else might not. Where would we be then?"

"It's been tried before and in theory it's good," said Mrs. E. R. Williams, 2925 Fifth Street. "But in practice, I don't think so."

Leonard McAdams, 1795 Rockland Avenue, also claimed disarmament is impossible, but for a different reason.

"Once you start disarming, all defence employees are out of a job," he said. "It would do a great deal of harm to the country because of this."

Far Distant Future

Then there were those who granted the possibility of world disarmament, but set the date for it in the far distant future.

"It's a wonderful idea if every country goes—for it," said Jim Brett, 1527 Camosun. "We won't see it in our time, but it is possible. It would require a world police force under the United Nations flag, armed with the latest weapons, to be sure the disarmament was adhered to."

"The question is, can people sit down and agree on anything?" asked George A. Smith, 325 Arnot. "But we either resolve peacefully or be annihilated. There's no point in manufacturing arms if we aren't going to use them. Unless something is done, sooner or later someone will step out of line and 'hat will start it.'"

"It has to come, but now is not the time," said Keith Stapleton, 164 Cambridge. "If we don't concentrate on peaceful development, Khrushchev will be proven right, and Communism will replace Capitalism, unless we get blown to hell in the meantime."

The idea of a world police force received backing from Jim Bartlett, 561 Selkirk.

Too Deadly, Costly

"It has to come sooner or later, but it has to be disarmament with inspection. War was all right when they just used swords, but with nuclear weapons it's too deadly and too costly."

George E. Knight, 1422 Vining, was cautiously optimistic about eventual disarmament. "People claimed that Britain slipped up by not being better prepared for the last war," he said.

One of the few who sounded as if they firmly believed in the possibility of present-day disarmament was William Cross, 3930 Tudor, who felt that disarmament is a calculated risk.

"Somebody has to start it," he said. "You could be a loser, certainly, but you could be a leader too. It's absolutely necessary."

The answer to the question of what to do with money saved by world disarmament was almost unanimous.

Everyone wished the money to be earmarked for education, aid to the aged, and help for the underprivileged both here and in other countries.

Here's How It's Used

Operation of a new portable telescope given last night by the Victoria Y's Men's Club to Queen Alexandra Solarium was discussed by Solarium administrator J. S. Biggest Blowout Planned for '66

British Columbia will hold another big 100th birthday party in 1966, Premier Bennett announced last night.

Then it will be to celebrate the union of the mainland colony of British Columbia with the Vancouver Island colony in 1866.

"It will be an even bigger celebration than in 1958. B.C. was really made when the two colonies joined," the premier said.

He said the government will set up a special committee to organize province-wide celebrations, but in the meantime

Old Man Falls Cutting Face

Ninety-two-year-old Fred Rempsey, of 1535 Belcher, received several cuts to the face when he fell down his basement stairs yesterday.

He was in satisfactory condition last night at Royal Jubilee Hospital where he was taken by police ambulance.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: I have a lovely home, a good husband, a teenage son and a dog who doesn't have any better manners than a cow in the pasture.

A few weeks ago a friend asked if I'd like a nine-month-old retriever. I decided to surprise my husband and son and said "yes." I must have been insane.

To begin with the "puppy" weighs 80 pounds. The first night my husband insisted I let the dog sleep in the living room. The dog cried all night and I got no sleep. The next morning it looked as if a horse had been in the house.

I told my husband the dog could not sleep where there was carpeting so he brought the animal into our bedroom which has a vinyl floor. The dog whined, scratched himself all night and bumped the bed. Again I got no rest. Nothing bothers my husband. He slept like a log.

When I suggested the dog be put in the breezeway my husband said "How would you like to sleep out there?" (Imagine putting me in the same category with a dog!)

To make a long story short, I'm in the guest room and the dog is in the bedroom. My husband cleans up after him in the morning, but it still smells like a stable in there. What shall I do?

—DOG GONE DISGUSTED.

Stay in Guest Room

Dear Dog Gone: Remain in the guest room until your husband agrees to put the dog in the breezeway, the basement, or in a dog house where he belongs. If the guy doesn't put a higher premium on your company he doesn't deserve it.

Dear Ann: I'm dating a girl 22 who is a college graduate. I always thought she had a terrific outgoing personality, a nimble wit and a good brain. The second time my folks saw her they said she was "loud" and "unrefined."

I've had arguments with her because she insists on talking to strangers in movies, at the ball park, in restaurants—just anywhere. She gets involved in long conversations with people she doesn't know. Last week she started up with a group of conventioners who had been drinking and it was embarrassing.

I'm beginning to wonder if my parents' evaluation isn't correct. Your opinion, please.

—DOUBTING THOMAS

Dear Doubting: "An outgoing personality" can be an asset, but it shouldn't be going out to people she doesn't know.

Girls who start conversations with strangers create the impression they're looking for new friends. It is unladylike and in bad taste. Tell her to cut it out, or look for a new fellow.

Just Mad About Him

Dear Ann: My daughter is 15, a fine student and never cared a hoot about boys until this year. A junior in high school has turned her head and she is just mad about him.

It turns me up the way she has turned over her life to Pat. She does his homework, wears his sweater, talks to him on the phone for hours and wouldn't think of accepting a date with another boy. He bosses her around as if he owned her and she seems to love it. I've talked myself hoarse and now I'm at the end of my rope. Please tell me what to do.—IGNORED.

Dear Ignored: When you get to the end of the rope, Mother, tie a knot and hang on. This is her first crush. The more you knock it the more she'll defend it. Be pleasant; in fact try to find some qualities in Pat to admire. It rarely fails.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting—And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

THE WELL-DRESSED LEG

When selecting stockings, most women fidget over a new shade. Does it flatter the leg? Will it "go with everything?" Then the majority decides on the same-old-old neutral. And the lack is pure folly. In these days of colored stockings.

Chosen as it now can be to carry out the color theme of a costume, a stocking offers the most flattery possible to the leg. For it forms a long, unbroken line that greatly enhances contours. Moreover, it goes better with the costume than any other. That's obvious. Considered from the standpoint of wear, a wardrobe of variously colored stockings serves as well as a neutral one. The investment is no greater.

Now, the woman who has been hesitant to adopt the fashion should be persuaded. If not, the subtle new interpretation of color in stockings should turn the trick.

To complement the grey overcast in costume shades, stockings are frosted or smoked with grey. For example, there's frosted grape to wear with frosted purple, frosted fern for smoky greens. Just name your costume color and there's a stocking for it, tinted to flattering perfection!

Nurse Absolved of Blame After Death of Infant

VANCOUVER (CP) — A nurse who told police she mistakenly gave a 20-day-old baby an overdose of stimulants was absolved yesterday of all blame in the baby's death.

M. J. Foley, chairman of St. Paul's hospital management board, released a statement which said an autopsy performed by city pathologist Dr. T. R. Harmon "revealed extensive congenital heart disease completely incompatible with life."

The autopsy revealed no sign that the overdose of digitalis poisoned the child and "consultation with leading physicians has revealed that the total cumulative effect of all the digitalis given the infant could not have produced death nor could it have contributed to death."

Police said earlier the nurse, who was not identified, admitted giving Laura Lee Gutenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Gutenberg of Vancouver, an overdose of digitalis.

The nurse said she misread the doctor's report.

May Wreck Marriage Beer, Pool, Cars For Husband, Work for Wives

WINNIPEG (CP) — A family court judge says selfishness and egoism cause most marriage break-ups.

Marriage is not something you don't like a wedding dress and live in happily ever after, Nellie McNichol Sanders, associate judge of the juvenile and family court, told an Insurance Institute meeting.

It requires "constant fitting and adjusting."

"You would hardly believe how many men are genuinely surprised to learn their wives aren't perfectly happy chasing after little pre-school demons day in and day out, while their husbands tinker with their cars, or play pool and drink beer with the boys."

"You mean to say she wants to go somewhere?" they ask. "Even if she does, how can we afford it?"

"Beer and pool and cars cost money," the judge said.

She advised strongly against passing judgment on others. Just because a couple makes no appeal to outsiders doesn't mean they don't appeal to each other.

As an example she quoted a cleaning woman who worked strenuously to support her worthless husband.

"It's him that makes the hard work worthwhile."

New Group Aims To Organize Women Students

VANCOUVER (CP) — An organization has been started here that aims to unite female university students in Canada.

The Canadian Inter-University Students' Organization hopes to have members in all universities.

Already co-eds. at the University of Saskatchewan have joined the organization and students at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., and Acadia, Wolfville, N.S., have expressed interest.

The organization was started at the University of British Columbia. Patti Darling, president of the Associated Women Students at UBC, is also head of the new group.

The group hopes to strengthen Canadian unity through exchange of ideas.

There's Really Nothing to This Home Cooking

Getting down to the business of home cooking are fathers of Norfolk House school children, left to right, Mr. C. W. Nelles, Mr. Vincent Pinhorn and Mr. Monty Tyrwhitt-Drake. Their cookery and other handmade wares will be on sale at the school's annual bazaar, Saturday, November 14. "Convening" the Fathers' Stall is Mr. Tyrwhitt-Drake, who feels that in the cooking field "fabulous prices can be fetched because women think the making of bread, cakes and candy by men is a joke." Tupper, the golden labrador, gives his master a soulful look to let him know that a dog is still man's best friend. Mr. Tyrwhitt-Drake reports the fathers are snowing him under with handiwork including carpentry, household gadgets, metal work and furniture. One father has contributed a live rabbit complete with elaborate four-room hutch.

More Interests, Sharing, Fun When Family Jaunts Together

By EDITH HENRY

Would your family like to form a Jaunters' Club? So often Saturday afternoon arrives with Father free and Mother pleased to get out for a little change. But where to go? Just for a drive? Follow the usual route?

A Jaunters' Club plans ahead. The Richardsons decided to be "Jaunters" last winter. They began by having a family conference after dinner one night.

Said Father: "Where would you like to go this winter for a few small trips? Everybody answer!"

Young Jeremy's request came first — no need for him

Mrs. Macdonnell Takes Top Post

A Victoria woman was elected to the post of a vice-president of auxiliaries division, British Columbia Hospital Association, it was announced this week. She is Mrs. Leslie Macdonnell, Admirals' Road, who attended the Association's annual convention in Vancouver.

Only other Victorian named to the board was Mrs. W. E. Speed, re-elected a second year as councillor.

Mrs. A. J. Tripp of Vancouver was chosen president and another Island woman, Mrs. N. T. Bennett of Nanaimo, was elected as a councillor.

Tips for Parents to think — "I'd like to go and see where TV pictures 'grow'!" Here was a good idea which started the family off.

They found eventually that they were within reach of a museum, a fish hatchery, an observatory, an historic fort, and a zoo. Later in the season they added the idea of winter sport — a distant superb toboggan slide, a skating pond in a conservation area, and a winter nature trail.

NO NEED TO CRAM

Trips are meant to be recreation — no need to cram a week's activity into a single afternoon, and every reason to plan ahead so that things run smoothly. The security of knowing where you are going, when, and how adds up to leisurely relaxation.

The Richardsons' family conference went on to consider their club's organization.

Father undertook transportation. Mother thought it would be nice to find out about the places they were going. As she was an enthusiast, this part fell to her.

DO THE FOOD

Mary wasn't very old, but she said she would do the food when they took any along. Timmy and his twin sister were honored by being asked to write up the trips in the Family Record Book.

Mrs. R. says she thinks it was the best winter of their family life, more interests, more sharing with willingness, more fun in the time spent together, and a good deal of enjoyable learning.

And this coming winter? "Well, we're being joined by three of our neighbors! But we're still going to stress planning ahead, sharing and simplicity, all characteristics of a good Jaunters' Club."

Woman Lawyer

Discrimination Met, Defeated

HULL, Que. (CP)—A successful young woman lawyer says there is discrimination against women in her profession both among large law firms and governments.

Miss Huguette-Marie Charette set up her own practice in spite of them and now is about to reach a milestone in her career as she defends in her first murder case.

She was selected last week by Court of Queen's Bench to defend Ronald Kyle Alexander, charged in the May 15 death during a robbery of bank manager Alexander Heron in Timiskaming, Que.

Miss Charette, 28, fluent in French and English, makes district history in becoming the first woman lawyer to defend a man charged with murder. She was born at nearby Pointe-Gatineau, Que., and graduated in 1956 from the University of Ottawa law school. Admitted to the bar in 1957, she spent a year with a large firm in neighboring Ottawa.

She said in an interview she could see there was no future for her there. "Usually companies want male lawyers."

She found that "the case was the same in the civil service" when she sought employment there. "They don't like to hire women."

The alternatives were to go into other work—as did the only other woman in her law class who now is a secretary—or open her own practice.

She chose the latter, although admitting it was unusual for such a young lawyer, and particularly a woman, to go into practice alone. She opened an office in Hull a year ago. "I'm surprised," she said. "I am doing very well."

Writ Frees Mother

VANCOUVER (CP)—A mother of three children committed to the provincial mental hospital at Essondale two days ago was released Thursday when a writ of habeas corpus was launched on her behalf.

Mrs. Florence Pauline Game, now living with relatives in Lillooet, was released after Mr. Justice David Verchere was told in supreme court there was no reason for holding her. The order committing Mrs. Game to Essondale was made by Lillooet Magistrate A. J. Craig on the authority of Dr. R. G. Karjala of Lillooet. The order followed an application by Mrs. Game's estranged husband, Frank Ernest Game.

Mrs. Game alleged the commitment was a ruse by her husband to prevent her proceeding with a divorce suit against him.

Got Her Wish

She Robbed Bank To Go to Prison

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (UPI)—Mrs. Irene Collier Quinn, 42, robbed a bank so she could go to prison. That's where she is. "I want to go to prison," Mrs. Quinn told officers when they arrested her. "I'm the one who robbed the bank."

Mrs. Quinn set out apparently with robbery in mind and seeking detection. She wore a bright green shirt.

Police said she went into the Commercial National Bank and was seen wandering around. She left in alarm when a teller asked if he could help her, police said.

Mrs. Quinn then went across the street to the Home State Bank and approached Miss Mary Moody, a teller.

"I want some bills," Miss Moody quoted her as saying. "She said she had a gun, but I didn't see it as her arm was below the counter."

Miss Moody pressed an alarm with her foot while doling out more than $400 in currency.

Mrs. Quinn left the bank and disappeared in the early afternoon crowd.

Police surrounded several blocks in the area. They had little difficulty finding Mrs. Quinn from the description of bank employees.

Women Better Space Travellers Than Men

WINNIPEG (CP)—An indication that women might make better space travellers than men came Thursday from the director of a research project at the University of Manitoba.

Dr. John Zubek, head of the university psychology department is directing experiments in which persons spend six days in a darkened sound-proofed isolation chamber. The purpose is to determine the effects of isolation and monotony on the human intellect. Information gained from the experiments might prove useful in space flights or long submarine voyages where persons would go through long periods of isolation.

Wilma Sansom, 29-year-old psychology student who emerged Wednesday from the isolation test, said she experienced only boredom—none of the hallucinations reported by three men who previously spent time in isolation.

She was the first woman to undergo such a test in Canada. Dr. Zubek said that without attempting detailed interpretation, a look at charts of her brain waves showed fewer disturbances than the charts of the men.

"If there is a sex difference, the implications are far-reaching," he said. He said that the United States, instead of training astronauts for space, should be training "astronettes."

"We may discover that it is an individual difference but offhand I would say women could take the situation better than men."

"There is plenty of documented evidence to show that the female is biologically better able to stand stress and strain."

During her six days in the padded plastic dome, seven feet high and nine feet in diameter, set on a platform in a room in the university administration building, Miss Sansom wore special ear muffs to cut down outside sound.

At specified periods she underwent tests to determine the effects of isolation. Food was passed through a trap door. She lay on a bed on the floor of the chamber.

For six days, she ate only a liquid commercial reducing diet. "It had the texture and color of green paint and tasted like a combination of liquid chalk and a milk shake," she said. She said she lost an inch or two "in places."

Asked if this was one of her aims in taking the test, she said: "No. It was a happy by-product."

She said that although she smokes heavily under normal circumstances, she did not miss smoking while she was in the dome. However, she started again as soon as she came out.

She experienced "a fixation on food," she said. "I cooked myself several delicious meals."

"The silence was rather pleasant. It was similar to being in the middle of a deep forest."

Dr. Zubek reported at a press conference that since he spent 10 days in the chamber, three men and Miss Sansom have gone in. The first man to follow Dr. Zubek lasted only three hours.

"He was suffering from profuse perspiration. Was weak all over, had headaches and thought he was suffocating," Dr. Zubek reported. "I doubt if any amount of money would ever get him in there again."

The symptoms were the classic ones of claustrophobia, or fear of closed places.

BUSINESS FAILURES

Stirring Times November 14

Stirring time has arrived for mince-meat makers. Mrs. G. A. Finestone, Mrs. Lionel Edwards and Mrs. J. G. Philpot, members of St. Mary's evening WA, are busy preparing for their bazaar, November 14, opening at 11 a.m. in the parish hall. Stalls will include attic treasures, sewing, novelties, candy, plants and Christmas cooking. (Colonist photo.)

A free program of recorded music will be held in the music room of the Victoria Public Library at 7.30 p.m. Friday. Program will feature ballet music, "The Red Poppy," by Gliere, and "Gaité Parisienne," by Offenbach.

State Worker, Married

'Drowned' Priest Found in Arizona

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest who dis- appeared March 4 from Ha- waii, turned up in Phoenix Wednesday, married and work- ing for the state of Arizona.

He is David P. Meyer, 28, an employment security commis- sion interviewer.

After his disappearance, Meyer was believed drowned until late in March when he was reported alive but ill.

He was assistant pastor of St. Anthony's parish at Wal- luku on the Hawaiian island of Maui with the name of Father Damien Meyer.

He and his wife, Rofina, de- clined comment on their recent activities.

He said his past "isn't ma- terial" and doesn't concern him.

Meyer was presumed drowned when his car, contain- ing his clothes, was found near a Maui beach.

An air and sea search con- tinued for almost a week and requiem mass was held for the priest at St. Anthony's March 10.

Mrs. Meyer was the former parish secretary.

Belleville Council Guilty of Neglect

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail reports the Royal Commission report into the financial affairs of Belleville, Ont., finds the city council guilty of gross negligence. The inquiry began when a deficit of $225,000 was discovered. Half of it was attributed to operation of the world champion Belleville hockey team.

Bennett:

Fight For Jobs

'Speak Up On Ships'

Premier Bennett yesterday called on the people of British Columbia to make "a real issue" of the federal government's failure to issue ship contracts to western shipyards.

He was referring to the two freighter contracts issued to eastern Canadian shipyards this week because it was claimed west coast tenders were $1,000,000 above the lowest eastern tender.

UP TO PEOPLE

"It is up to the people of British Columbia to speak up right now," he said.

He had praise for Victoria Mayor Percy Scurrell's efforts to have at least one of the contracts placed on the West Coast. "I am very pleased with the attitude of Mayor Scurrell in this problem," he said.

GREAT DISMAY

The premier said he was "alarmed that the national government had turned down the shipyards of British Columbia . . . It was with great dismay I learned the national government was not letting either contract to the Pacific Coast."

MOST UNFAIR

"We think it is most unfair and unrealistic. We can't keep trained artisans here in the event of a national emergency, if these jobs are not available here . . . The federal government doesn't recognize the great trained and skilled craftsmen in our shipbuilding industry," he said.

SCALE IGNORED

He charged that the federal government doesn't take into consideration the B.C. wage scales.

"The federal government benefits from the taxes, especially income tax, and should take that into consideration," he said.

POOR DEAL

The premier charged British Columbia was getting a very poor deal from the government of Canada.

He said B.C. only gets a return of 13 per cent from income taxes collected in this province under the tax-rental scheme, whereas "some provinces get 85 per cent of the taxes collected."

SEAWAY EXAMPLE

The premier pointed to the big works programs in eastern Canada such as the St. Lawrence seaway and complained the federal government won't even build bridges for B.C.

"Since we are treated so poorly, we think the least they can do is let some of these ship contracts to the west coast," the premier maintained.

Three Flung into Active Pass After Cruiser Hits Tug Rope

'Starved' Universities Losing Out to U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP)—The federal government is "starving" Canadian universities of money for pure scientific research, a ranking physicist with the University of British Columbia said Thursday.

"Canada is losing its brilliant young minds to the United States for lack of opportunities here at home," said Dr. Gordon Shrum, outspoken dean of graduate studies and head of the physics department at the university. He made the remarks in an interview.

Dr. Shrum asked for more space for scientific research equipment, more outstanding young research men, and more money for fellowships to support the scientists' work.

"Science is part of our civilization," the physicist said. "We want to provide our own know-how and not continue forever to pay tribute in the form of royalties to other nations — nations which make better use of their brightest young people."

End result of this "starvation of universities" will be reduction of the number of good scientists being turned out by the universities to a trickle, Dr. Shrum said.

K's Appeal Backed Up

LONDON (AP)—Moscow Radio said last night the Soviet Union has launched a new world-wide appeal in support of Premier Khrushchev's total-disarmament plan. The appeal was aimed at parliaments of all countries in all parts of the world.

Khrushchev has called for abolition of all armies, navies and air forces, military bases and war staffs over a period of four years.

GALIANO—Three men were thrown into the icy waters of Active Pass about 8 p.m. last night when their 32-foot cruiser hit a tow rope behind a tug.

George Heinecke, chairman of School District 64 (Salt Spring) board of trustees, and Chalmers N. Peterson, secretary of the board, were going to Mayne Island to attend a school board meeting, aboard the Hazel Idle Hours, operated by Harry Extell.

THROWN OVERBOARD

The cruiser hit a tow rope behind the Vancouver-based tug Grant Lindsay and threw the men into the pass.

CLIMBED UP

The three men trod water until the barge being towed by the tug came up to them and then they climbed aboard.

The tug was unable to turn around to take them back to Galiano and continued on its way to Vancouver. They arrived there late last night.

Scandals 'Crisis In Morals'

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI)—Dr. Norman Vincent Peale yesterday called the television quiz scandals "a crisis in national morals."

The clergyman-author, "somewhat shocked by the dishonest aspects of TV quiz programs," asked whether "this country had become a nation of 'moral illiterates'."

DR. NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

'Kickbacks' Disclosed

Jail TV Cheats NBC Suggests

WASHINGTON (AP)—Robert E. Kintner, admitting his own National Broadcasting Company had been a victim of quiz show fakery, suggested Thursday that Congress pass a law to jail TV program cheaters.

Kintner, NBC president, told a Congressional sub-committee his network is taking every step it can to prevent any repetition of the quiz show connivance which shocked millions of television viewers.

Later, Kintner disclosed that two employees of the current TV quiz show, Treasure Hunt, have been fired for taking "kickbacks" from contestants they helped get on the program.

The network chief did not identify the employees, but Jan Murray of Jantone Enterprises, Inc., owner of the show, and its producer, Phil Levens, identified them as Barney Martin and Artie Roberts. They worked as "warm-up" men, who were supposed to loosen up the audience before Treasure Hunt went on the air.

Subcommittee chairman Oren Harris said later that Kintner's proposal "deserves consideration by the committee."

Kintner also announced that NBC planned to create a special investigating unit to police its programs for the purpose of "detecting, rooting out and preventing deception."

Kintner asked Congress and the public not to judge the broadcasting industry by disclosures that many big-money quiz contests had been rigged.

After 3½ hours at the witness table, Kintner was excused by Harris with this advice: If the television industry doesn't police itself, it faces the danger of rigid controls by the government.

Charlie My Boy

NEW YORK (AP)—A crowd of cheering, chanting students turned out on the Columbia University campus Thursday night demanding that Charles Van Doren be rehired as a teacher.

About 400 students milled about for two hours chanting "We want Charlie back . . . we want Charlie back."

High in one of the dormitories a trombonist played over and over the tune, Charlie, My Boy.

Nearly 1,000 students signed a petition asking his reinstatement.

Council Backs Wyatt Report

By R. O. MARRION

Victoria city will seek relief from what City Manager C. C. Wyatt described yesterday as "lopsided, inequitable, unjustifiable" taxation for school costs.

If there is no relief, he said, Victoria ratepayers will have paid at least $8,530,933 more than their just share of Greater Victoria school costs in the 25 years ending in 1970.

He presented to city council a comprehensive report recommending that the provincial government be asked to remedy the situation, and council unanimously adopted the recommendation. It appointed its finance committee and Mr. Wyatt to take the case to the government.

Two aldermen suggested that, failing success in this move Victoria should seek to pull out of the Greater Victoria school district.

"I take the stand that if we can't get a better deal, we should force ourselves out of School District 61 and have a better deal on our own," said Ald. M. H. Mooney. Ald. Elmer McEwen said much the same thing.

Mr. Wyatt's report, the result of months of work, showed that Victoria's per-pupil school costs are substantially higher than its municipal neighbors.

C. C. WYATT
... unjustifiable

'Rich' Pay for 'Poor'

The district ratepayers' portion of school costs is shared among municipalities in the district in proportion to the assessed value of property within their boundaries, regardless of the number of children going to school from each. In this way the "richer" municipalities pay more than the "poorer," although their school tax rates are roughly the same.

But Mr. Wyatt disagreed with this concept.

"To suggest that one municipality is a 'have' (as opposed to 'have-not') solely because of its taxable assessment is absurd," he maintained.

Because Victoria ratepayers have to pay higher taxes than their neighbors for central services in the "core" of Greater Victoria, he held, Victoria should be categorized as a "have-not," and its taxpayers "should not be placed in the position of having to subsidize the local school costs."

Instead, he said, Victoria's school costs should be what they would have been if Victoria had not been made part of the Greater Victoria school district, but had stayed on its own. Victoria, he maintained, should have to pay no more than the costs of sending its own children to school.

Here Are Findings

Here, in much-condensed form, are his findings:

From 1946 — when the Greater Victoria district was created — to 1959, the city has paid $2,283,441 more than it would have if the amount had been determined by multiplying the average per-pupil cost by the number of Victoria students.

In addition, in that period, school construction costs in Victoria have been $2,305,229, but the city's share of construction costs in the whole district has been $3,988,226, an "excess" of $1,682,229.

Therefore, "it would appear that the Victoria taxpayers have, and will continue to contribute materially to the school construction costs outside of the city's boundaries unless the formula is modified."

From 1960 to 1970, using Capital Region Planning Board projections of school enrolment, Victoria pupils will account for only 13.3 per cent of an increase of 6,750.

On this basis, Victoria taxpayers will pay $4,011,620 more toward operating costs than they would if they were paying only for their own children. By the same token, Victoria's share of construction costs will be $552,875 greater than it would be if Victoria were to pay only for new classrooms needed for Victoria children.

No Really High Rates

The Cameron report of 1945 which resulted in formation of larger school districts supposed that "no really high rates will remain, and it will make little financial difference to a district whether or not it becomes part of a larger unit."

But "neither Dr. Cameron nor the government of the day, in view of the written prediction, it will make little financial difference," conceived that the city of Victoria would be so adversely financially affected."

No authority, Mr. Wyatt said, "can be construed as logical and justifiable which requires the taxpayers of one municipality to pay, either directly or indirectly, materially higher per-pupil school costs than its neighboring municipalities. This is especially true when there are instances of school children from two or more municipalities attending the same school. And yet that is the circumstance that has prevailed for the past 13 years and is becoming progressively more pronounced."

"He directed council's attention to a provision of the Public School Act permitting the cabinet to give special aid to a school district "upon taking into consideration the position and circumstances of the district."

Council's first reaction was to congratulate Mr. Wyatt on his "wonderful" and "very excellent" report and "terrific amount of work."

Ald. Austin Curtis, a former school board chairman, pointed to what he called another "unseen cost" to the city — 400 more children attending schools in the city borders than city children attending schools in the other municipalities.

He said he thought council had to forget the past 13 years but get to work to save city taxpayers from the extra burden in future.

Ald. Elmer McEwen recalled he had said in the spring that

Operator Convicted Of Causing Suffering

NANAIMO—A story of filthy, rat-infested kennels was unfolded by six prosecution witnesses in Nanaimo police court yesterday.

Another story, of impeccably clean, well-kept premises, was, on the other hand, related by nine defence witnesses.

All were giving evidence at the trial of Mrs. S. E. Raynor, operator of the Yarron Kennels at South Wellington.

Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts convicted the woman of causing unnecessary suffering to 25 dogs by failing to provide adequate food, water, shelter and care. He remanded her for sentence for one week.

A charge alleging that local SPCA Inspector Otto Comis assaulted Patty Ann Raynor, Miss Nanaimo for 1959, by attempting to kiss her, was adjourned until Nov. 25.

Miss Raynor, 17, told the court yesterday she had helped her mother clean out the dog kennels only moments before the SPCA investigation party arrived on the premises Sept. 26.

Crown prosecutor Harold Hine remarked that it was amazing how quickly the kennels became so filthy and smelly in so short a time.

Magistrate Beevor-Potts agreed. He had heard SPCA special investigator Walter F. Taylor of Vancouver describe how he had arrived about noon with Comis, Nanaimo veterinarian Dr. John Sheehan, and RCMP constable Kenneth Brand.

"We visited an old iron shed, poorly constructed, with many gaps in the iron sheeting which would cause terrific drafts," Inspector Taylor said.

Polish-Canadian Leader:

Russians Liars On Disarmament

World disarmament "will only work if all the countries are honest—and I have never known the Russians to tell the truth."

The man who said that was Z. J. Jaworski, president of the Canadian Polish Congress, interviewed here yesterday at the legislative buildings.

He was in Victoria to pay a courtesy visit to Premier Bennett and also to pass along some of the views of B.C.'s 16,000 Polish-Canadians. There are 300,000 in Canada.

Of Khrushchev's total disarmament proposal, Mr. Jaworski said, "He was only talking to make appeasement."

"Khrushchev now needs the help of the Western world because perhaps he has trouble with Red China."

"The Chinese Reds have started ignoring some of Russia's suggestions about industry and other things, you know," he said.

The Polish-Canadian engineer—he came to Canada in 1942 with 700 other Polish engineers "to help the war effort"—feels that "Dulles-type statesmanship is the answer."

Nanaimo—Not Victoria Marks Guy Fawkes Day

NANAIMO—Victoria may be the most "British" city in the province, but only Nanaimo observes Guy Fawkes Day, a traditional English celebration. Guy Fawkes Day fell yesterday, Nov. 5, the 354th anniversary of Fawkes' attempt to blow up the British Houses of Parliament, together with King James I, by barrels of gunpowder stacked in the cellar of the parliament buildings.

The custom was brought to Nanaimo more than 100 years ago.

Explodes Into Flame

Family Homeless After Alberni Blaze

ALBERNI—A Dutch family of five was left homeless last night when their rented house exploded into flames early in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Westerman and their three young sons lost everything but the clothes they were wearing when fire consumed the Grandview Road house within minutes of the first flames.

It is believed the fire started when cooking fat boiled over from a fry pan and ignited on a hot element. The house was apparently filled with fumes from an oil stove at the time.

Mrs. Westerman and three-year-old Harry were alone in the rural area house when the fire started.

"I had only time to pick Harry up in the living room and get out," he young mother said. She ran with the child to the home of neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Frakes, a few hundred feet away.

Mr. Westerman, employed on the "graveyard" shift at a local mill, had gone out a few minutes before the fire with one of his older boys to collect the other boy who was at an aunt's house in Port Alberni.

Colwood PTA Invites Warden

Victoria area parents, teachers and PTA members who would like to hear about problems close to their hearts, are invited to attend a meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Colwood Elementary School.

Warden of the New Westminster penitentiary, F. C. B. Cummins, will be guest speaker. A Colwood PTA spokesman said, "and he will be talking about juvenile delinquents, and probably about the minimum security prison at William Head."

Dial System Fire Warning

CHEMAINUS—A dial fire alarm system for here and Crofton will cost about $2,500 a year, Coun. Stanley Dyke said yesterday.

North Cowichan council agreed it is the cheapest available at present and gave Reeve C. A. P. Murlison permission to sign a contract with the B.C. Telephone Co.

The reeve said possibly in the future it might be cheaper if council were successful in finding one person or company who could be available 24 hours a day.

The new system is due to start sometime next spring. Under the old system operators called chiefs or deputies and turned on fire alarm signals.

The Elmer Gill Trio is to play at the Progressive Artists' get-together this weekend. This is the second visit by the well-known trio to "The Scene" at 1306 Wharf Street. Showtime is 10.30 tonight and tomorrow.

Mail Vote to Decide 'Free Calling' System

DUNCAN—A mail vote among telephone users here, Cobble Hill, Chemainus and Ladysmith will be held soon to see if subscribers favor a "free calling" system.

This was announced last night by district commercial B.C. Telephone Co. manager L. A. Huxtable at a meeting here of telephone company officials and civic leaders from the four areas.

If free calling is approved it will mean Cobble Hill could call here without extra charge, Duncan to Cobble Hill or Chemainus, Chemainus to Duncan and Ladysmith, or Ladysmith to Chemainus.

If the vote is favorable, the system will be submitted to the board of transport commissioners for approval. The company would then install additional trunking facilities needed to carry the increased load for calling that would result from the removal of tolls, said Mr. Huxtable.

The system could not start until dial service, now being engineered for Duncan and Cobble Hill, is brought in, probably in 1962. New rates for Cobble Hill and Ladysmith would be:

Individual residence, $4.35; two-party residence, $3.40; multi-party residence, $2.90; individual business, $8.50; and multi-party business, $5.20.

New Duncan and Chemainus costs would be:

Individual, $4.60; two-party, $3.60; multi-party, $3.05; individual business, $9.55; and multi-party business, $5.65.

Through Filthy Window

He said the dogs, older dogs and puppies, were in wire enclosures of various sizes. There were no outside runs provided, and the only daylight in the building was that filtering through cracks in the sheet and a "diffused light" through a "filthy" window.

He described an overpowering smell from "dirty, damp straw" beneath which, he said, was a layer of about a quarter-inch of "goo." Moving the straw, he saw rat holes, and spotted one live rat in the building.

There were no water facilities, Mr. Taylor said, and no heat was provided.

He admitted under cross-examination by lawyer Stanley Wardill that he had not removed the 25 dogs, although he was empowered to do so.

Dr. Sheehan said three of 25 dogs were "not in good state of health." Their skin was in poor shape and they were of unsightly appearance, he testified.

Mrs. E. J. Barker, a school teacher, and Mrs. Alice Kinch, a Duncan nurse, said they had visited the kennels a month earlier to verify rumors they had heard about Yarron Kennels.

Both said the stench from the kennels was overwhelming. They said they had been shown through the premises by Mrs. Raynor, but Mrs. Raynor denied ever seeing them before.

Magistrate Lionel Beevor-

Potts commented the two women for coming forward and said he believed their story. Both operate kennels in their spare time in the Duncan area.

Defence witnesses Robert Nelson Petersen, Stanley Gordon Brooks, Mrs. Marie Doell, Harold Leslie Steeves and Mrs. Margaret Broadhurst all said the Yarron Kennels were always clean, and the animals well watered and fed.

Podola Hangs As Prisoners Shout Protest

LONDON (UPI)—Guenther Fritz Podola, convicted of murdering a policeman in one of the most sensational trials in recent British history, was hanged yesterday while fellow prisoners shouted angry protests against capital punishment.

A small crowd carried on the protests outside grim Wandsworth Prison, students and religious sect members carrying banners and chanting "Thou shalt not kill."

Podola died for the slaying of unarmed Det. Sgt. Raymond Purdy last summer while Purdy was attempting to arrest him on suspicion of blackmail.

Old Friends, Bygone Battles Will Be Remembered by Veterans Wednesday

War veterans of Greater Victoria will recall old friends and bygone battles Wednesday during Remembrance Day services in the city and surrounding municipalities.

Almost 1,000 veterans are expected to parade, with service units, from Humboldt and Government to the Cenotaph on the legislative building grounds Nov. 11 for services at 11 a.m.

Fall-in for members of Britannia, Pro Patria and Naval Veterans' branches of the Canadian Legion, and Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada will be 10 a.m.

Parading with them will be members of the Royal Canadian Navy, the PPCLI, auxillary RCAF, army militia units, and women's auxiliaries.

In addition, a memorial service will be held Sunday at 4:30 p.m. at Christ Church Cathedral.

On Wednesday, cadets from HMCS Venture will mount guard at the Cenotaph from 6:30 a.m. until 10 a.m., when Navy, Army, RCAF and

RCMP personnel will take over.

Also attending the service at the Cenotaph will be service cadets, Boys Scouts and Girl Guides.

Invocation will be pronounced by the Rev. A. I. Higgins of First United Church, himself a former squadron leader in the RCAF, while Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross will take the salute from a reviewing stand in front of the Empress Hotel.

Services will also be held in Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich.

Oak Bay's service will be held at 3 p.m. at the Memorial on Beach Drive in the Uplands, weather permitting. Otherwise, it will be held in Oak Bay United Church. Officiating will be Canon H. J. Jones of St. Mary's Church, Rev. Alexander Calder of Oak Bay United, and Rev. Richard Mugg of St. Mary's.

In Esquimalt, the service will take place at 11 a.m. in Memorial Park, with Rev. William Hills of St. George the Martyr Church, Cadboro

Bay, giving the address. Veterans, permanent force units, and Scouts and Guides will take part. Commodore John Deane will take the salute.

In Saanich A. E. Horner, 1729 Kiser, who conducted that municipality's first Armistice Day service in 1919, will again be in charge of ceremonies at 2 p.m. at Gore Park on Shelbourne.

Residents 'To Flee' Vancouver

CAMPBELL RIVER—Local residents will become fugitives from Vancouver for a day tomorrow when civil defence officials carry out a small-scale exercise, duplicating emergency conditions.

Representing Vancouver residents who have fled to Vancouver Island for safety, the local residents will assemble at the Campbell River community hall in the morning.

They will be taken to the Campbell River High School by CD transport chairman Fred Balmer, where they will be clothed, fed and allotted accommodation.

Dr. John Dewey, chairman of CD medical service and a team of nurses, St. John Ambulance and Red Cross workers will be on hand to treat the injured and the sick.

Mrs. Marion Graham, chairman of the welfare committee, has arranged for clothing for the "victims" and Mrs. A. Ostergaard, superintendent at Campbell River hospital, will be in charge of medical attention.

Thompson and Mrs. B. C. will head the personnel section.

DUNCAN — Reeve C. A. P. Murison — a man who believes in having the taxpayers' money earning dividends — has suggested North Cowichan council should auction timber from their tree farm and invest the more than $100,000 the sale would bring.

He said the interest would cover the cost of getting the 9,000-acre municipal forest reserve started as a tree farm. "It would give the municipality the best of two worlds," he said yesterday.

The timber to be sold would be that which is now mature, he said, so there would be no chance of it being lost in a forest fire.

Money from the sale — estimated from $100,000 to $150,000 — could be invested in solid 20-year government stocks at an interest rate of 5.75 per cent or more, Reeve Murison pointed out.

Earlier this week council approved in principle the reeve's proposal to turn the forest reserve into a tree farm. Council decided yesterday to discuss further the sale suggestion at a works co-ordinating meeting in about two weeks.

DUNCAN — Trustees and teachers can't come to terms over salaries but they did agree to appoint one man to represent them both in conciliation proceedings — until the school board last night discovered it is not allowed.

They both agreed on lumber businessman Hector Stone of Gibbins Road, who would have been conciliation officer for both sides.

"I must apologize to the board," said finance chairman Trustee Wilf Peck to the board. "I didn't realize the act said conciliators have to be appointed."

After a hurried call to the Cowichan Teachers' Association salary committee head, and one to dairyman John Hubert of Koksilah, Mr. Peck announced Mr. Hubert will represent the board.

Conciliation efforts are allowed until Nov. 15. If the two parties haven't agreed on a salary scale for next year by then, arbitration proceedings start.

NORTH COWICHAN — Council has adopted a policy of compulsory retirement of municipal staff members when they become 65 years old.

It goes into effect today and includes an escape clause that will allow councils to continue to employ a person if they wish.

The new policy, passed in a motion by council yesterday, affects only one employee — a man who is now 66 years old. At the meeting councillors indicated they will probably continue to employ the unnamed man.

DUNCAN — A 17-year-old high school student was put on six months' probation yesterday for speeding at 66 m.p.h. in a 60 m.p.h. zone.

"If you kids knew what a headache you are to your parents, it might hold you up a bit," commented juvenile court judge A. C. Sutton.

PORT ALBERNI — James William Olson, 39, collapsed and died while at work at So-mass Division Sawmills Wednesday night.

Born in Vancouver, he came to the Alberni district with his parents when only four years of age.

He was a Canadian army veteran of North Africa, Italy and Sicily campaigns in the Second World War.

Mr. Olson leaves his widow, Rita; two sons, Peter, 7, Paul, 4, and a daughter, Margaret, 10, at home, 638 Leslie Avenue, Alberni. His parents and a sister, Gladys, live in Vancouver.

Rites will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday in All Saints' Church. Interment will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

DUNCAN — H. B. Matthews has been named to head a six-man planning committee to suggest a site and prepare plans and costs for a new Cowichan hospital.

Mr. Matthews, chairman of the board of the King's Daughters' Hospital, which the new hospital will replace, was instructed at the meeting to make plans for a hospital the government will approve.

Committee members are Duncan alderman Steve Saunders, North Cowichan councillor Tony Staples, Koksilah representative C. B. Meredith, Lake Cowichan representative Gunnar Nielsen and KDH administrator Ken Noton.

CHEMUNIS — North Cowichan council has approved sharing the cost of widening, lighting and making a turning lane on the Trans-Canada Highway at Henry Road.

Total cost to the municipality will probably be about $600, half the total. The rest will be paid by the provincial department of highways.

DUNCAN — Many motorists here park too close to corners, Magistrate A. C. Sutton said in police court yesterday.

He made the comment after H. L. Merrett, 147 York, pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to yield the right of way. He said vehicles parked at the corner of Ingram and Canada obstructed his view.

He was involved in an accident. Merrett was fined $15.

City Must Act Official Says

A first step toward higher water rates for Victorians was taken yesterday.

City council finance committee recommended that the city water commissioner be instructed to revise the rates upward.

The city has known for some time that its wholesale rate paid to the Greater Victoria water board will be progressively increased in the next few years because of large capital expenditures planned by the board. The wholesale rate is expected to be nearly doubled in the next four or five years.

POOR RETURN

But even at the present rate, City Comptroller Dennis Young told finance committee, the city is receiving a poor return in its retailing of water.

"If the rates are not revised, we may only break even next year," he said.

Finance committee received from the city comptroller and decided to forward to the intermunicipal committee a report opposing pension increases for former employees. Increases would have to be borne entirely by the taxpayers.

ACT CONSISTENTLY

Mr. Young suggested that council must act consistently with its policy in assisting other needy persons.

He expressed "every sympathy" with municipal pensioners but pointed out that the needy who were not eligible for old-age pensions could obtain social welfare assistance.

The committee also decided to take up with the intermunicipal committee Goodwill Enterprises' request for tax exemption or an equivalent grant.

OTHER DECISIONS

Other committee decisions: To recommend payment, from contingency funds, of the $1,426 of the city's share of the Capital Region Planning Board budget which council cut out of its own budget last May.

To recommend taking $2,500 from land-sales funds for lighting of the new parking lot on the public market site and $4,800 for parking meters for the lot, but to look for a way of repaying the money into the fund from parking lot revenue.

Toastmaster Clubs Plan Fall Rally

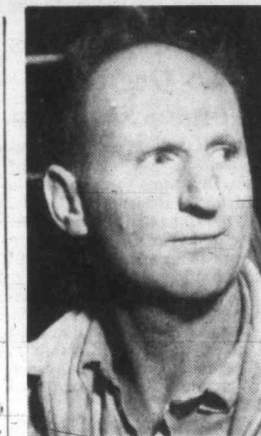

The five toastmasters clubs of Victoria will hold their jointly-sponsored fall meeting at 7 p.m. Saturday at Holyrood House, 2315 McBride.

Special guests at the dinner meeting will be District 21 (B.C.) governor Ralph MacColl of Nanaimo and international director Robin Dick of Vancouver.

City Hall's Top Floor 'Disgrace'

Upper floors of the city hall are an "utter disgrace," Ald. Arthur Dowell said yesterday.

His remark stemmed from a request for authority to spend $500 on ceiling work in the city engineer's office and the hall outside the council chamber. About a square yard of old plaster crashed down Wednesday.

"The ceiling in my general office has been leaking for three years," City Comptroller Dennis Young reported. "We put buckets here and there on the floor to catch the drops."

No Leads In Holdup At Garage

No progress has been made in solving Tuesday night's $178 robbery at the All Star Texaco service station, 1647 Fort, police said last night.

Detectives doubted whether the lone attendant, Everett Potter, 61, who was shoved into a back room by a masked bandit wielding a steel bar, would be able to recognize the man if he saw him again.

Another Centennial

Biggest Blowout Planned for '66

British Columbia will hold another big 100th birthday party in 1966, Premier Bennett announced last night.

Then it will be to celebrate the union of the mainland colony of British Columbia with the Vancouver Island colony in 1866.

"It will be an even bigger celebration than in 1958. B.C. was really made when the two colonies joined," the premier said.

He said the government will set up a special committee to organize province-wide celebrations, but in the meantime

Distrust Too Prevalent Says 'Man In Street'

Mutual distrust among nations is proving an almost insurmountable barrier to world disarmament and world peace.

This was the main point of several brought out yesterday in a "man on the street" survey on the question of world disarmament. The survey showed that almost everyone favors disarmament, but that most are viewing it through a dark cloud of pessimism.

There were three main schools of thought. Most claimed world disarmament is impossible now or at any time. Several expressed the faith that some day it may come, and a small minority claimed it is feasible now.

The angle of mutual distrust was the biggest argument of the first group. They claimed, and backed up their arguments by looking at the political history of the world during the past 10 years, that nations will never achieve enough harmony to bring about disarmament.

"It will never come, not so long as this old world turns," said Mrs. F. J. Martens, 1034 View Street. "Selfishness is ruling every corner of it. Besides, I don't think the Russians are ever going to stop fighting."

Much the same opinion was expressed by J. A. Neale, 28 Douglas Street.

Always One Cheat

"General world conditions make it impossible, and it's not entirely practical because there would always be one country ready to cheat. It's human nature to try and get ahead, and some would try it no matter what the odds."

"It's not possible and it's not a good idea," Chuck Corbin, 3131 Delta, stated emphatically. "I'm afraid the way I feel is, I don't trust anybody, and why should they trust me."

This, in various forms, was repeated again and again by the sceptics called. "Who is to say everyone will do it?" said Ronald Starkey, 2839 Knotty

Pine. "Everyone might to start with, but what happens if someone changes their mind?" "If we disarm," said his wife, Mary Lou, "someone else might not. Where would we be then?"

"It's been tried before and in theory it's good," said Mrs. E. R. Williams, 2925 Fifth Street. "But in practice, I don't think so."

Leonard McAdams, 1795 Rockland Avenue, also claimed disarmament is impossible, but for a different reason. "Once you start disarming, all defence employees are out of a job," he said. "It would do a great deal of harm to the country because of this."

Far Distant Future

Then there were those who granted the possibility of world disarmament, but set the date for it in the far distant future.

"It's a wonderful idea if every country goes for it," said Jim Brett, 1527 Camosun. "We won't see it in our time, but it is possible. It would require a world police force under the United Nations flag, armed with the latest weapons, to be sure the disarmament was adhered to."

"The question is, can people sit down and agree on anything?" asked George A. Smith, 325 Arnot. "But we either resolve peacefully or be annihilated. There's no point in manufacturing arms if we aren't going to use them. Unless something is done, sooner or later someone will step out of line and that will start it."

"It has to come, but now is not the time," said Keith Stapleton, 164 Cambridge. "If we don't concentrate on peaceful development, Khrushchev will be proven right, and Communism will replace Capitalism, unless we get blown to hell in the meantime."

The idea of a world police force—received backing from Jim Bartlett, 561 Selkirk.

Too Deadly, Costly

"It has to come sooner or later, but it has to be disarmament with inspection. War was all right when they just used swords, but with nuclear weapons it's too deadly and too costly."

George E. Knight, 1422 Vining, was cautiously optimistic about eventual disarmament. "People claimed that Britain slipped up by not being better prepared for the last war," he said.

One of the few who sounded as if they firmly believed in the possibility of present-day

Fight For Jobs

Premier Bennett yesterday called on the people of British Columbia to make "a real issue" of the federal government's failure to issue ship contracts to western shipyards.

He was referring to the two freighter contracts issued to eastern Canadian shipyards this week because it was claimed west coast tenders were $1,000,000 above the lowest eastern tender.

UP TO PEOPLE

"It is up to the people of British Columbia to speak up right now," he said.

He had praise for Victoria Mayor Percy Scurrell's efforts to have at least one of the contracts placed on the West Coast. "I am very pleased with the attitude of Mayor Scurrell in this problem," he said.

GREAT DISMAY

The premier said he was "alarmed that the national government had turned down the shipyards of British Columbia . . . It was with great dismay I learned the national government was not letting either contract to the Pacific Coast."

MOST UNFAIR

"We think it is most unfair and unrealistic. We can't keep trained artisans here in the event of a national emergency, if these jobs are not available here . . . The federal government doesn't recognize the great trained and skilled craftsmen in our shipbuilding industry," he said.

SCALE IGNORED

He charged that the federal government doesn't take into consideration the B.C. wage scales.

"The federal government benefits from the taxes, especially income tax, and should take that into consideration," he said.

POOR DEAL

The premier charged British Columbia was getting a very poor deal from the government of Canada.

He said B.C. only gets a return of 13 per cent from income taxes collected in this province under the tax-rental scheme, whereas "some provinces get 85 per cent of the taxes collected."

SEAWAY-EXAMPLE

The premier pointed to the big works programs in eastern Canada such as the St. Lawrence seaway, and complained the federal government won't even build bridges for B.C.

"Since we are treated so poorly, we think the least they can do is let some of these ship contracts to the west coast," the premier maintained.

'Starved' Universities Losing Out to U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP)—The federal government is "starving" Canadian universities of money for pure scientific research, a ranking physicist with the University of British Columbia said Thursday.

"Canada is losing its brilliant young minds to the United States for lack of opportunities here at home," said Dr. Gordon Shrum, outspoken dean of graduate studies and head of the physics department at the university. He made the remarks in an interview.

Dr. Shrum asked for more space for scientific research equipment, more outstanding young research men, and more money for fellowships to support the scientists' work.

"Science is part of our civilization," the physicist said. "We want to provide our own know-how and not continue forever to pay tribute in the form of royalties to other nations — nations which make better use of their brightest young people."

End result of this "starvation of universities" will be reduction of the number of good scientists being turned out by the universities to a trickle, Dr. Shrum said.

B.C. Crash Kills Pilot

LITTLE PRAIRIE, B.C. (CP)—The pilot of a Cessna 175 single-engine plane, owned by Barton Air Services of Anchorage, Alaska, was killed Thursday when the plane crashed at the mouth of the LeMoray River in north-east British Columbia.

GALLIANO—Three men were thrown into the icy waters of Active Pass about 8 p.m. last night when their 32-foot cruiser hit a tow rope behind a tug.

George Heinecke, chairman of School District 64 (Salt Spring) board of trustees, and Chalmers N. Peterson, secretary of the board, were going to Mayne Island to attend a school board meeting, aboard the Haze Idle Hours, operated by Harry Extell.

THROWN OVERBOARD

The cruiser hit a tow rope behind the Vancouver-based tug Grant Lindsay and threw the men into the pass.

The boat went adrift and is believed to have sunk.

CLIMBED UP

The three men trod water until the barge being towed by the tug came up to them and then they climbed aboard.

They hailed the tug which stopped and took them aboard. The tug was unable to turn around to take them back to Galiano and continued on its way to Vancouver. They arrived there late last night.

Scandals 'Crisis In Morals'

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI)—Dr. Norman Vincent Peale yesterday called the television quiz scandals "a crisis in national morals."

Jail TV Cheats NBC Suggests

WASHINGTON (AP)—Robert E. Kintner, admitting his own National Broadcasting Company had been a victim of quiz show fakery, suggested Thursday that Congress pass a law to jail TV program cheaters.

Kintner, NBC president, told a Congressional subcommittee his network is taking every step it can to prevent any repetition of the quiz show connivance which shocked millions of television viewers.

Later, Kintner disclosed that two employees of the current TV quiz show, Treasure Hunt, have been fired for taking "kickbacks" from contestants they helped get on the program.

The network chief did not identify the employees, but Jan Murray of Jantone Enterprises, Inc., owner of the show, and its producer, Phil Levens, identified them as Barney Martin and Artie Roberts. They worked as "warm-up" men, who were supposed to loosen up the audience before Treasure Hunt went on the air.

Subcommittee chairman Oren Harris said later that Kintner's proposal "deserves consideration by the committee."

Kintner also announced that NBC planned to create a special investigating unit to police its programs for the purpose of "detecting, rooting out and preventing deception."

Kintner asked Congress and the public not to judge the broadcasting industry by disclosures that many big-money quiz contests had been rigged.

After 3½ hours at the witness table, Kintner was excused by Harris with this advice: If the television industry doesn't police itself, it faces the danger of rigid controls by the government.

CHARLIE MY BOY

NEW YORK (AP)—A crowd of cheering, chanting students turned out on the Columbia University campus Thursday night demanding that Charles Van Doren be rehired as a teacher.

About 400 students milled about for two hours chanting "We want Charlie back . . . we want Charlie back."

High in one of the dormitories a trombonist played over and over the tune, Charlie, My Boy.

Nearly 1,000 students signed a petition asking his reinstatement.

Council Hails Wyatt Report

By R. O. MARRION

Victoria city will seek relief from what City Manager C. C. Wyatt described yesterday as "lopsided, inequitable, unjustifiable" taxation for school costs.

If there is no relief, he said, Victoria ratepayers will have paid at least $8,530,933 more than their just share of Greater Victoria school costs in the 25 years ending in 1970.

He presented to city council a comprehensive report recommending that the provincial government be asked to remedy the situation, and council unanimously adopted the recommendation. It appointed its finance committee and Mr. Wyatt to take the case to the government.

(See also Page 19)
Two aldermen suggested that, failing success in this move, Victoria should seek to pull out of the Greater Victoria school district.

"I take the stand that if we can't get a better deal, we should force ourselves out of School District 61 and have a better deal on our own," said Ald. M. H. Mooney. Ald. Elmer McEwen said much the same thing.

Mr. Wyatt's report, the result of months of work, showed that Victoria's per-pupil school costs are substantially higher than its municipal neighbors.

'Rich' Pay for 'Poor'

The district ratepayers' portion of school costs is shared among municipalities in the district in proportion to the assessed value of property within their boundaries, regardless of the number of children going to school from each. In this way the "richer" municipalities pay more than the "poorer," although their school tax rates are roughly the same.

But Mr. Wyatt disagreed with this concept. "To suggest that one municipality is a 'have' (as opposed to 'have-not') solely because of its taxable assessment is absurd," he maintained.

Because Victoria ratepayers have to pay higher taxes than their neighbors for central services in the "core" of Greater Victoria, he held, Victoria should be categorized as a "have-not," and its taxpayers "should not be placed in the position of having to subsidize the local school costs."

Instead, he said, Victoria's school costs should be what they would have been if Victoria had not been made part of the Greater Victoria school district, but had stayed on its own. Victoria, he maintained, should have to pay no more than the costs of sending its own children to school.

Here Are Findings

Here, in much-condensed form, are his findings:

From 1946 — when the Greater Victoria district was created — to 1959, the city has paid $2,293,441 more than it would have if the amount had been determined by multiplying the average per-pupil cost by the number of Victoria students.

In addition, in that period, school construction costs in Victoria have been $2,305,229, but the city's share of construction costs in the whole district has been $3,988,226, an "excess" of $1,682,229.

Therefore, "it would appear that the Victoria taxpayers have, and will continue to contribute materially to the school construction costs outside of the city's boundaries unless the formula is modified."

From 1960 to 1970, using Capital Region Planning Board projections of school enrolment, Victoria pupils will account for only 13.3 per cent of an increase of 6,750.

On this basis, Victoria taxpayers — will pay $4,011,620 more toward operating costs than they would if they were paying only for their own children. By the same token, Victoria's share of construction costs will be $552,575 greater than it would be if Victoria were to pay only for new classrooms needed for Victoria children.

No Really High Rates

The Cameron report of 1945 which resulted in formation of larger school districts supposed that "no really high rates will remain, and it will make little financial difference to a district whether or not it becomes part of a larger unit."

But "neither Dr. Cameron nor the government of the day, in view of the written prediction, 'it will make little financial difference,' conceived that the city of Victoria would be so adversely financially affected."

No authority, Mr. Wyatt said, "can be construed as logical and justifiable which requires the taxpayers of one municipality to pay, either directly or indirectly, materially higher per-pupil school costs than its neighboring municipalities. This is especially true when there are instances of school children from two or more municipalities attending the same school."

And yet that is the circumstance that has prevailed for the past 13 years and is becoming progressively more pronounced."

He directed council's attention to a provision of the Public School Act permitting the cabinet to give special aid to a school district "upon taking into consideration the position and circumstances of the district."

Council's first reaction was to congratulate Mr. Wyatt on his "wonderful" and "very excellent" report and "terrific amount of work."

Ald. Austin Curtis, a former school board chairman, pointed to what he called another "unseen cost" to the city — 400 more children attending schools in the city from beyond the city borders than city children attending schools in the other municipalities.

He said he thought council had to forget the past 13 years but get to work to save city taxpayers from the extra burden in future.

Ald. Elmer McEwen recalled he had said in the spring that
